COX, CRUICKSHANK, LACEY SCORE 71'S TO TIE FOR LEAD

(Copyright, 1934, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
ARDMORE, Pa., June 7.—The white-faced bunkers of Merion were conquering sentinels on guard at the opening round of the national open golf championship. With the roistering breezes, the keen greens and the strain of the open, they rolled back the tidal wave attack of golf's greatest field.

Not a single entry from the large and brilliant cast of the Merion and Wiffy Cor. of Brooklyn; were Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, and Charley Lacey, of Lakeville, marched unopposed in front of the parade with their 71's against the course par of 70. The old battlefield, narrow and well-trapped, met the test in one of the wildest first-day scrambles any open has ever known.

Geoffrey Sarazen, the F. G. A. king, was stepping on the heels of the flying trio with a 73, but the great massing came between 74 and 76, the over par, where such stars as Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Mac Smith, Walter Hagen and Craig Wood, with over 30 others, were lumped together only a stroke or two apart.

In the midst of the general excitement, Lawson Little, the new British amateur star from Sanford, smacked his fist on the clubhouse floor and finished with an 83—just 17 strokes above his famous final round at Prestwick. When his big gun was spiked and the women were powerful young westerners lost all confidence in his tee shots—one of his par-busting hopes—and after an 8 at the long, killing fourth hole, he never had a chance.

It remained for young Rodney Bliss, of Omaha, to lead the amateurs with a sparkling 74, which included a 30 back home, followed by 20-year-old Charley Yates, of Atlanta, at 75, with Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, only a stroke away, still fighting grimly in defense of his title.

RAFFLED BY CROSS WINDS.
What happened to the large and brilliant cast that in practice has threatened to demolish the course and win the hide off par?

Merion's gleaming white bunkers looked each man square in the eye, and the usual strain of major championship did the rest.

It might be said here that Cox, Lacey and Cruickshank, who tied with Bobby Jones at Inwood just 11 years ago, turned out a big job in carving their 71's through the narrow lanes, the baffling cross winds and the puzzling greens.

Lacey, the Lakeville leader, had two pars for a 69 but he missed the 230-yard 17th green and needed three putts at the long 18th.

Mac Smith drew a cruel start as he stumbled through the fifth hole, far over par, and then the veteran settled into a blazing pace as he played the last 13 holes in 3 under 48.

The big gallery of the day swung back of the feature match—Sarazen

Carl Vinson Moves To Aid South's New Paper Industry

Ezekiel Modifies Stand Against Slash Pine Development, But Says Public Should Control Work.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Intent upon heading off any government interference with growth of the southern newspaper industry, Representative Vinson, democrat, Georgia, introduced today a resolution to make unlawful the promulgation of federal regulations restricting expansion of American industry which must compete with large foreign imports.

Vinson said the resolution was introduced after he heard reports the government might look unkindly upon expansion of industry in view of the proposed tariff regulations under the reciprocal trade bill.

Roosevelt Friendly
However, President Roosevelt told newspapermen yesterday he was heartily in favor of developing pulp and newspaper from southern slash pine.

The Vinson resolution reads: "Neither the agricultural adjustment act nor the recovery act shall be construed to authorize any prohibition upon the establishing of any manufacturing plant which uses agricultural or forestry products in the production of articles more than 50 per centum of the quantity or value of which used in the United States is imported from foreign countries."

"Any provision of any code, agreement, license rule or regulation issued or adopted under either of such acts which is contrary to the provisions of this joint resolution is hereby made unlawful."

Ezekiel Retractions
Mordcaid Ezekiel, economic advisor to Secretary Wallace, said today in response to questions that he did not oppose development of a paper pulp industry using southern pine forests but felt that if the government supplies experimental furze industries which benefited from those funds should remain under public control.

The Chemical Foundation in New York applied to President Roosevelt last winter for federal aid in developing the southern paper industry, arguing that it would save the United States about $170,000,000 a year now spent in buying newspaper from foreign countries.

Must Buy
Ezekiel, to whom the letter was referred, said that only through the buying of such products from foreign countries, was this country able to export goods in return.

If we take still further steps to reduce our imports, the ability of foreign countries to buy more cotton and fruit for export will be correspondingly reduced, and in the end we will merely intensify our farm readjustment problem," he said at that time.

Today he emphasized that the application for federal funds to aid the paper development experiment had not been disposed of finally but was still being studied.

"A great many critics of the new deal claim that such experimentation should be left to private enterprise," he said. "It seems questionable to me for the government to put up the money to experiment with new and unproved industries."

$4,000,000 Asked
He said the suggestion was that the federal government put up about $4,000,000 for an experimental plant on a commercial scale.

"The studies which have been going on for some time in the United States have been going on for some time in the United States."

BOARD CONTRACTS $750,000 IN WORK ON GEORGIA ROADS

Two Biggest Jobs, Including Atlanta-Athens-Augusta Paving, Go to Whitley Construction Co.

The state highway board Thursday awarded contracts for more than $750,000 worth of paving, grading and bridge work and the board chairman, W. E. Wilburn, announced that another big letting had been set for June 28 when a similar amount of work will be contracted.

Chairman Wilburn said the projects to be included in the June 28 letting will be announced next week.

The two biggest contracts awarded Thursday were for state jobs, one completing the paving of the Atlanta-Athens-Augusta highway by laying 12.8 miles of concrete between Washington and Thomson, and the other concreting 9.5 miles of the unpaved section of the Barnesville-Fort Valley link of the Barnesville-Fort Valley route which eliminates Macon from the main highway between Atlanta and south Georgia.

The Whitley Construction Company, of LaGrange, got both contracts, the first for $215,400.52 and the second for $535,047.52.

The other contracts awarded Thursday follow:

Gen. Rice A. Pierce, of Tennessee, Is Chosen Commander of United Confederate Veterans

Seventy-one years ago George W. Sherman, of Barnesville, Ga., raced wildly past this same cabin, the Brotherhood house, where Longstreet's Virginia brigade broke through the Yankee right wing and routed the federal army. He was in the troop train that arrived in the nick of time from Lee in Virginia to reinforce Bragg on the eve of Chickamauga. He lay in the flaming woods behind this cabin and got to his feet when he heard the rebel yell keening above the musketry and charged shouting through the fatal gap left by General Wood's withdrawal. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—General Rice A. Pierce, Union City, Tenn., attorney, former congressman and a veteran of Nathan Bedford Forrest's famed Confederate cavalry, was elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate veterans today without opposition.

He succeeds General Homer Atkinson, of Petersburg, Va.

Selection of a reunion city for next year, with invitations received expectantly from both Tallahassee, Fla., and Tuscaloosa, Ala., was placed in the hands of committee of five with instructions to report within 30 days.

While electing General Pierce commander, the veterans made a new honorary commander for life, conferring that title on General R. D. Chapman, of Houston, Texas, whose illness prevented his attendance at the reunion this year. General Chapman had been prominently mentioned for the active command position until it was definitely known that he would be unable to make the long trip from his home.

General Harry Rene Lee, of Nashville, was reappointed adjutant general and chief of staff of the U. C. V. by General Rice in the new commander's first official act.

Dr. Richard Bullington, of Memphis, was elected as commander of the Army of Tennessee department, succeeding General Sims Latta, of Columbia, Tenn.

J. M. Hartsfield, of Fort Worth, Texas, was elected commander of the trans-Mississippi P. division, succeeding General Chapman.

Dr. William McK. Evans was re-elected commander of the Army of northern Virginia.

In retiring as commander, General Atkinson halted an action of his aged comrades to make him an honorary commander for life and indicated he would prefer to remain simply a companion resting upon his accomplishments during his active term in office.

SCORES OF CODES MUST BE REVISED UNDER NEW ORDER

Force of Anti-Trust Laws To Be Left Unquestioned as Restrictions on Prices Are Reduced to Simplest Terms.

CHANGE EFFECTED AFTER SURVEYS

Industrialists Who Have Worked With NRA Will Meet for Frank Discussion of Blue Eagle.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—

NRA officials and definitely turned its back on price fixing today in outlining a new policy that will require the revision of scores of codes to permit free competition to keep prices up difficult if not impossible.

Only in definite emergencies would even a minimum price be fixed for any industry or any item. NRA men said they believed the new policy represented the first agreement of either government or any business agency what constituted desirable price competition.

Darrow Report Factor
The declaration was a product of months of economic study, which was effected indirectly by activities of groups such as the Darrow board. It responded partly to earlier public criticism and observation of officials on result of the economic code.

Announcement of the new policy was made simultaneously with disclosure that the 50 or so industrialists who have worked with NRA as members of the industrial advisory board—some of them with names known to the whole nation—have arranged to meet in Hot Springs, Va., within 10 days to compare views on NRA operation and pass upon ideas for changes.

The meeting will be strictly private and Hugh S. Johnson may or may not attend. It was understood he had been invited.

New Policy
The code of the new price policy is: It is forbidden and any prices which appear unreasonably low may be investigated and a correction required if they are found to be unfair.

2. A democratic minimum price will be allowed only in cases of demonstrable emergency, threatening destruction of business firms, employment or wage levels. Then only NRA shall have the right to determine what is the minimum price to be fixed and were Dutch Jews by the original name of Rosenfeld inasmuch as they find no trace of the Rosenfelds in the vital statistics of Holland.

"This is not meant to disparage the president or his forebears, whatever their racial extraction. It is mentioned to possibly explain the present Mr. Roosevelt's extraordinary leaning toward Hebrews in all truly significant offices and functions."
The same document referred to Secretary Morgenthau, Secretary Ickes, Bernard Baruch, Justice Lewis D. Brandeis, of the supreme court, and others to show "the preponderance of Jews in the presidential appointments and in the presidential preferences."
Frank Mutschinski, of New York, supplied the testimony about the rifles and uniforms. These, he told the committee, were shipped to the United States from Germany for the use of the "Stahlhelm" or steel helmets in New York city.
While he was connected with the organization, Mutschinski said, its orders were received from a Hitler cabinet officer in Germany.
An "unwritten order," he asserted, was that Jews could not belong to the "Stahlhelm."

Three Killers Die in Ossining Chair

OSSENING, N. Y., June 7.—(AP)—

Three members of a murder syndicate who killed a derelict for $2,000 insurance died in the electric chair tonight. The fourth member of the syndicate who was scheduled to die with them was granted a last-minute reprieve so that his sanity might be investigated.
Daniel Kreisberg was taken into the execution chamber first, at 10:00 p. m., eastern standard time. He was pronounced dead by prison doctors at 10:13. He was solemn and bewildered.
Anthony Marino, former speakeasy proprietor, was next.
The current was sent into Marino at 10:15 and five minutes later he was pronounced dead. He smiled as he entered the chamber.
Frank Pasqua, 24, was serious and pale when he entered the death chamber. He was strapped in the chair at 10:22 and pronounced dead at 10:25.
The three executions took but 14 minutes.
Pasqua, Kreisberg and Marino were convicted of the slaying of Michael Marino, a derelict, who survived nine of their attempts to kill him.

Our boast is of the customers who work and save, and manage to serve meals as good and as nourishing as the meals enjoyed by their wealthier neighbors. We're more than proud that we have helped the average American family to get the food it needs at the prices it can afford to pay.

Mrs. Harris To Appeal Dismissal Of $10,000,000 Suit on Copyright

An appeal from the decision given Thursday by Judge L. Marvin Underwood in the suit of Mrs. Esther LaRose Harris, widow of Joel Chandler Harris, against the Coca-Cola Company for $10,000,000, will be instituted at once before the United States circuit court of appeals in New Orleans.

Thomas Croom Partridge, member of the firm of King & Partridge, representing Mrs. Harris, made an announcement to that effect Thursday afternoon.

"We expect to institute an appeal at once," Mr. Partridge said. "It is too early to specify the points to which we object, but we will appeal, generally."

"It should be recognized, however, that our appeal, and the decision of the court in the case of Mrs. Harris Thursday, applies only to a part of one book and not all Joel Chandler Harris' writings. Our litigation concerns only a small portion of his output."

Suit Dismissed.

The suit which was instituted by Mrs. Harris against the Coca-Cola Company, asking $10,000,000 damages for infringement of copyright, was dismissed in federal court Thursday by Judge Underwood.

The court held that there was a "want of equity" in the complaint filed by Mrs. Harris. While attorneys did not care to discuss technicalities involved Thursday, the court's declaration of "want of equity" will likely be the basis of the appeal.

Suit against the Coca-Cola Company was brought by Mrs. Harris when the company advertised its product with colored cardboard replicas of many of the principal characters in stories by Mr. Harris and drawn by A. B. Frost.

Judge Underwood ruled that the stories and illustrations used, with the exception of one, "The Awful Fate of Mr. Wolf," had passed into the public domain. The court further ruled that the picture, "Uncle Remus and the Little Boy," claimed to have been one of the illustrations in "The Awful Fate of Mr. Wolf" showed a difference from the infringing picture.

"I find, as I did upon the motion to dismiss the petition, that the copyright of the book and illustrations, to the extent the evidence may show them to be copyrightable, has been by the various proceedings, preserved to the complainant as widow of the author," Judge Underwood ruled.

"There remains," he said, further, "the question whether or not the stories and illustrations claimed to have been infringed were copyrightable."

"There is no question in the court's mind of the high literary value of these stories as original expressions of great genius, and the copyrightability of their substance."

"The copyright of them and their illustrations is therefore valid in the complainant as the widow of the author, unless they had passed into the public domain by previous dedication arising out of their publication before copyright, or notice of copyright."

It is upon this decision that an appeal will be taken to the circuit court of appeals of the United States.

First Lady Launches Subsistence Project

REEDSVILLE, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—The 50 pioneer families of this first project, in old Arthur House here, joined today with Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt in a celebration of its opening that had a touch of the religious, although last-minute technicalities prevented their anticipated moving in.

Fifty shining new little houses stood on the hillside, waiting only the final wording of the contracts, and the turning on of electric power to become 50 homes.

After an opening message filled with rejoicing that a dream less than 10 months old was so fast coming true, the president's wife went into a closed conference with her friends, the homesteaders.

Volunteers Mobilize In Search for Child

SHARON, Pa., June 7.—(AP)—Chief of Police Charles Sager said today he was satisfied that four-year-old Leah Minerva Dilley, missing from her home since Sunday, "had been stolen."

The search was intensified today and Boy Scouts and volunteers joined police in an effort to find some trace of the child who last was seen playing in a park resort.

It was in this community that the kidnapping of Willie Whitley, 25 years ago, provided a nation-wide mystery until his release for ransom and the capture of his abductors.

Chief Sager said a widespread search for the Dilley child has brought no results.

Mr. Durigan Finds Relief in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here is his enthusiastic letter:

"Am 70 years of age, and for 40 of these years there never was a week but what I had to take a pill or some kind of cathartic."

"I took everything, but gained only temporary relief. Until last spring my daughter, who is a nurse in a hospital, brought me some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN."

"At the end of the week, I knew I had something that was it, and I kept on taking it. I haven't taken a cathartic since. I can eat meat any time, as often as I like, or any other kind of food, and no constipation." Mr. L. M. Durigan, 6811 Buffalo Ave., Jacksonville, Florida.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help muscle tone. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much safer than patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Five Take Advantage Of Bankruptcy Law

NEW YORK, June 7.—Five major corporations, involved in receivership or bankruptcy proceedings in federal court, hastened to take advantage of the new bankruptcy law, signed by President Roosevelt at noon today and which liberalizes the procedure under which receiverships may be dissolved.

The companies were the United Cigar Stores of America, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, Paramount-Publix, the Associated Telephone Utilities and the Roxy Theaters. In all cases the petitioners sought permission to reorganize their businesses under the new law and, in most cases, there were indications that all or most of the interested parties joined in the applications.

SEN. LA FOLLETTE FAVORS 3D PARTY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Young Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, has flicked up a page in his father's book to see whether it might not be well to have a third party in the national election two years hence.

His idea percolated today in the minds of some senate republican independents.

It was fostered by the assertion of the seion of the late progressive leader that the selection of Henry P. Fletcher as republican national chairman was a notice to "millions of progressives throughout the country that there is no place for them in the republican party."

Twelve years ago, Robert La Follette Sr., headed a third party ticket, designated as progressive, like that with which his son identified himself a few weeks ago in the Wisconsin senatorial campaign.

The split of opinion over the choice of Fletcher ran on down through the party today. Charles Curtis, vice president with Herbert Hoover, landing from abroad, said at New York that the choice of Fletcher was a "wonderfully wise selection."

The reconstruction of the republican party, shaken by the 1932 debacle, Curtis said, should not be "a matter of Hoover or anti-Hoover."

Unsolicited by republicans, big figures of the democratic party offered their opinions today on the Fletcher selection.

Postmaster-General Farley, the national chairman, said "The selection of Mr. Fletcher is evidence of the fact that the republican party is still pursuing its old policy which was repudiated by the voters at the last election."

Farley said Fletcher was a "member of the old guard."

Speaker Rainey, who tries to keep President Roosevelt's house in order for democrats, said Fletcher should make a "good republican chairman," that "he undoubtedly is well qualified to misrepresent conditions in the country."

To Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the democratic floor leader, Fletcher's selection meant that the republican party was "waiting on its old idols."

Wedding Anniversary For Courthouse Trio

Congratulations were being extended Thursday to three courthouse figures who were celebrating their wedding anniversaries.

"Dad" Watkins, veteran elevator operator, was proudly telling friends that 49 years is a short time to be married, when it's the right woman.

The other two celebrants are Judge Jesse M. Wood, of criminal court at Atlanta, and W. H. Spratlin, deputy clerk of superior court, both of whom chose June 7, 29 years ago, as their wedding dates.

Bride Admits Killing Admirer on His 'Dare'

DENVER, June 7.—(AP)—A bride of a fortnight was held in jail today by police who said she admitted slaying an admirer.

"He dared me to and I did," Mrs. Belle Fiske Newton, 30, was quoted by Roy Mack, assistant captain of detectives. The dead man was one of Mack's subordinates, Detective James S. Turner, 46. His body was found yesterday in a field near Arvada, a suburb.

Mrs. Newton's purported confession told of a drive with Turner Monday to an isolated spot. There she told him she had been married two weeks before to F. H. Newton, a motor car salesman, and the detective was said to have become abusive.

"I grabbed his gun and told him I'd shoot him," Mack quoted Mrs. Newton. "He dared me to and I did."

Henry and I have Settled The Bread Problem

1 Henry and I talk about bread quality often. The other day I suggested that we try a different brand of bread each day until we found the one that suited us best.

2 I told our grocer of my plan and he agreed it was a good one, but asked me to begin my test by trying the new Merita Twist Loaf first. I did.

3 I may have been unfair to other breads, but our test ended with the new Merita Loaf, for both Henry and I agreed that it suits our tastes perfectly.

Why don't you make that test. No matter what bread you are now using, switch for one day to the new Merita Twist Loaf. If you don't say that here is the finest bread you've ever tried, a bread that has a delicious flavor you've never found in any other—then go back to the old type bread. But Merita bakers are confident you won't. For here is a bread distinctly better than any other that Merita has ever made before—and remember, Merita has been the largest selling loaf in the South for a generation.

Accord Is Reached On RFC Bank Aid

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Disputes over one form of federal aid to depositors in closed banks and extension of the temporary plan for governmental insurance of bank deposits were brought to a compromise today by senate and house conferees. They agreed upon legislation to authorize RFC loans to closed banks on "reasonable" security rather than the requirement of "adequate" security specified in the present law. In addition they agreed to double the maximum deposit guarantee, raising it from the present $2,500 to $5,000 and to extend for one year the period in which state banks must become members of the federal reserve system in order to participate in the deposit insurance plan.

City Moves To Stop Bootlegging in Meat

City authorities Thursday prepared to wage a vigorous campaign against the alleged sale of bootleg fresh meat in Atlanta.

Following complaint of a delegation of Atlanta butchers, Mayor James L. Key sought the co-operation of Ken Caldwell, inspector for the city health department, and Dr. John P. Kennedy, health officer, in enforcement of ordinances requiring that all cattle be slaughtered at the city abattoir and be inspected by health authorities. Butchers contend that unscrupulous dealers are purchasing calves from one to five days old and selling the meat. The calves, according to the complaint, are killed in the country and the meat bootlegged into Atlanta. Dr. Kennedy said calves less than three weeks old are a danger to health.

NEW TESTIMONY BARRED IN RUTH DEAN APPEAL
GREENWOOD, Miss., June 7.—(AP)—Holding that objection should have been raised at the trial last February, Judge S. F. Davis, in circuit court here, today overruled introduction of testimony regarding alleged misconduct of the spectators at the hearing of a motion for a new trial for Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, woman physician convicted of murder in connection with the "poison whisky highball" death of Dr. John Preston Kennedy.

J. J. Breland, counsel for Dr. Dean, sought to introduce in the record the claims that the spectators were "hissed" against the defendant and that during the trial they "applauded" points scored by the prosecution and "hissed" the defense.

Losing in their effort to introduce this testimony, Attorney A. F. Gardner, of the defense, began arguments on the motion for a new trial, based on 14 points.

The child underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday, Tuesday night, according to official records of his case, his temperature rose to 108 degrees. During Wednesday the highest was 103.25. Thursday the reading was reduced to normal, 98.6. The child is now expected to recover, despite his unusual case.

TO GIVE RECITAL HERE
Fort Valley's High and Normal school glee club will give a concert of negro spirituals, Sunday morning, at 6 o'clock at St. Luke's Episcopal church for the Young People's Service League of the city of Atlanta.

The High and Normal school, located several miles from Fort Valley, is maintained jointly by the Episcopal dioceses of Atlanta and Georgia and is considered one of the outstanding schools for the training of negroes. The Glee Club, which will be heard in concert, has recently toured the province of Swazee, giving a series of concerts.

3-Year Road Program Agreed on by Solons
WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Authorization for a three-year road construction program costing a billion dollars was agreed upon today by congressional conferees.

Managers of the house and senate reached a complete agreement on a bill to authorize appropriations of more than $500,000,000 during the next three years to be added to $230,000,000 left over from last year's fund and $250,000,000 to be contributed by the states.

Under the proposed program the federal government will add $100,000,000 to the $230,000,000 carry-over for construction work during the next fiscal year.

For the fiscal year 1935, the federal aid highway program will be resumed, with the government putting up $125,000,000 to be matched by the states. In addition, a final grant of $100,000,000 will be made under the emergency unemployment relief program.

The following year, 1937, the relief appropriations will be dropped, and the treasury will only put up $125,000,000 to be matched by the states. In addition to these appropriations for the main highway system, the bill contemplates total appropriations of $72,000,000 for roads in parks, public lands, Indian reservations and forest lands.

Board of 7 to Hold Communications Rule
WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Control of the nation's communications service—telephone, telegraph, cable and radio—will be placed in a federal commission of seven members under a complete agreement reached by congressional conferees today on differing house and senate bills.

The senate had proposed a five-man supervisory body, but yielded to the house managers on this point. The conferees also accepted the house language regarding division of powers within the commission, permitting the control body to create its own divisions as under the interstate commerce commission, but forbidding decisions of any division to stand as final as the senate measure would have provided.

Politics Ban Warning Voiced by Morgenthau

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—A sharp warning that works violating laws against political activities will be "removed" and evidence given to "prosecuting" authorities today was given by Secretary Morgenthau. To each person was directed a form letter calling attention to criminal statutes forbidding "any officer or employee to solicit or receive political contributions from any other officer or employee" and prohibiting "any person, whether an employee of the government or not, to solicit or receive political contributions in any room or building occupied by government officers."

"Delay" Is Dangerous When CONSTIPATED

End stuffy, clogged-up feeling, splitting headache, and other constipation ills with this complete, more thorough action. Chew delicious Feen-a-mint, the chewing gum laxative. Feen-a-mint acts more thoroughly, because chewing distributes the laxative ingredient uniformly throughout the intestines to give a "full," more natural action. Feen-a-mint never shocks the system nor abuses the bowels. It is gentle, safe. Promptly and thoroughly it causes the bowels to empty their waste and poisons. It helps rid you of sluggishness and helps make you feel more energetic and fresh. Delicious Feen-a-mint contains a laxative ingredient regularly prescribed by physicians. "Delay" is dangerous—chew Feen-a-mint for constipation. 15c and 25c at druggists everywhere.

McPherson to the fifth floor of the old postoffice building July 1, Major General George Van Horn Moseley, the corps commander, announced Thursday.

General Moseley said that work of renovating the section of the building to be used by the army will be started next week and completed in time for the army's occupancy July 1 or a few days later. The corps area commander said that the army would not wait for the general renovation of the building, which is being planned by the treasury department at a cost of $55,000.

"We will need only a few minor changes on the floor we are to occupy," the general said. "It will not take more than two or three weeks to complete the changes we want."

The commander said that a number of officers who now live at Fort McPherson probably would move downtown, but added that he planned to continue in his present residence at least until fall.

General Moseley said that the buildings at the post now occupied by the corps area headquarters would be used by the civilian conservation corps, and that one of them probably would be turned over to the post hospital to be made into a CCC hospital ward.

"The hospital needs additional space," he said. "We will assign at least one more building to the surgeon and it probably will be used exclusively as a CCC ward. Other buildings will be turned over to the CCC and other activities most needing space."

THE SOUTH... Home of One of the Great Names in Textiles

It is a long step from the hand loom of our ancestors to the mighty machines of the modern weave shed. Yet that step spans the years which tell the history of Pepperell.

From the earliest days the South has been known for the beauty, fineness, and wearability of its fabrics. And the weavers of today—more than 3,000 men and women responsible for the countless yards of the eagerly sought for Pepperell Fabrics produced in the South—are no less skillful than their predecessors. They maintain with jealous pride, their traditional heritage of fine workmanship.

And it is truly their heritage. For the Pepperell mills in the South are managed and manned by Southerners—citizens, taxpayers, and, in many instances, home owners of the communities in which they live.

Yes, the great mechanical loom has replaced the wooden frame of our forefathers. Countless Mazda bulbs blaze where once flickered home-made tallow dips. Light, airy, clean working quarters have replaced the dusty, stuffy attics of Colonial times. But the old Southern tradition of fine workmanship lives on in the workrooms of the Pepperell mills—and in the minds of the people who work there.

Where can Pepperell merchandise be bought? The worth-while and important stores in every city carry it, and you should have no trouble finding it.

Whether it be Lady Pepperell or Pepperell Peers Percal Sheets and Pillow cases or Baby Pepperell Crib Blankets that you need; busby work clothes for your husband or dainty underthings for yourself; prints for dresses, drapery fabrics, towels or wash suitings; Lord Pepperell Shirts, Pajamas, or Shorts for men or boys; play suits or maids' uniforms, look for the Pepperell name and mark. If you should have any difficulty finding the Pepperell article you want, just write to us. We want to help you.

On the Air Today

VACATIONING—"Your Neighbor" and his broadcast of Genial Gossip, which would ordinarily be heard this evening, is taking two-week broadcast vacation and will not be heard tonight. Tommy Rosen's Wisteria Garden's orchestra will fill the 8:15 p. m. spot.

MODERN MANNER—Johnny Green, youthful conductor and composer, will resume his "In the Modern Manner" broadcasts over the WGST-Columbia network today from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

The program will be presented at that time each week and will consist of Green's modernistic interpretation of song hits, old and new, featuring such guest artists as Gertrude Niesen and the piano team of Jacques Fray and Marie Braggiotti. This series, won great popularity on the CBS network last fall.

Highlighting the first broadcast will be a symphonic treatment of the popular "Beat My Heart," renditions of "Covent Garden" and "Knight's Bridge March" from Eric Coate's "London Suite," and "Champagne Waltz" will follow. Gertrude Niesen will sing "Once in a Blue Moon" and "Heat Wave."

During the series Johnny will use 40 members of Columbia's dance and symphony orchestra groups and plans to feature the works of young American and European composers who have only recently gained recognition. On one of the early broadcasts he will play his own "Night Club Suite," which brought him new laurels last year following its premiere at Carnegie Hall.

POLITICS—Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, republican minority leader, will speak on "Some Political Reflections" in a broadcast over the WGST-Columbia network today from 9 to 9:15 p. m., eastern day light saving time. His talk will be given from the Washington studios of WJWS. Senator McNary, long prominent in national legislation, has been in the senate since 1917.

U. S. GOLF—Ted Husing will review the second day's play of the United States open golf championship at the Merion Cricket Club, Ardmore, Pa., in a broadcast over the WGST-Columbia network today. He will broadcast from 1 to 1:05 o'clock from a vantage point overlooking the eighteenth green.

CONCERT—Mary Eastman, soprano, and Evan Evans, baritone, with a concert orchestra directed by Howard Barlow, will broadcast a program of musical comedy song hits over the WGST-Columbia network tonight from 6 to 6:15 o'clock. Their offerings will feature Jerome Kern's famous duet, "Make Believe" from "Show Boat," and George Gershwin's hit song, "Somebody Loves Me," from "George White's Scandals." Miss Eastman's solo will be "Giannina Mia" from Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly," and Evan will sing "Beautiful Lady" from "The Pink Lady." The orchestra will play "I've Told Every Little Star" from "Music in the Air."

Reviewing the Shows

Lombardo, Burns, Allen Featured in Fox Film

Fun galore is to be found in the new Paramount picture, "Many Happy Returns," starring for the first time on the motion picture screen Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, along with a cast including Gracie Allen, George Burns, George Barbier and Joan March, which opens a week's run at the Fox theater today.

Burns and Allen, the witwits of the network, are again performing at their giddy gyrations, driving everyone crazy with their preposterous comedy situations while Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians play the "Sweet Music This Side of Heaven," (that's the title of one of the songs).

The story concerns the adventures of Grace Allen, who loves a radio announcer in the person of George Burns. She has just about wrecked her father's department store with her crazy ideas and in order to be rid of her for all time, he offers Burns $10 per mile for every mile he takes her on their honeymoon. From the time Barbier, the father, makes this proposition until they return from Hollywood, where naturally Grace puts her monkey wrenches into the business, there is just one big laugh after another.

As usual, the short subjects have been selected to round out a well-balanced program. Betty Boop is in cartoon, "Betty Boop's Trial," while Grantland Rice furnishes new thrills in his spotlight, "Lucky Angler."

'Little Man, What Now?' Shows at Paramount

Once in a great while from the movie capitals of the world comes something really great and beautiful. Critics and reviewers all over the country agree in their praise of "Little Man, What Now?" the new Frank Borzage production, starring Margaret Sullivan and Douglas Montgomery, which begins a week's run at the Paramount today. A beautifully directed story of the love, trials and hardships of a young couple on the threshold of life, it tells the world and trembling at the vastness of it all.

Married almost entirely without savings, the youngsters struggle along on the pittance which the boy earns as a clerk, only to have their income cease entirely when he loses his job. Many disheartening adventures ensue, but finally the young husband obtains another clerkship in a department store.

On the first pay day, however, he spends almost his entire month's wages on a dressing table for his wife, simply because she has admired it in a furniture store window, and they again find themselves without funds. Approaching motherhood confronts the young wife, but months before the happy event the husband again loses his position.

Appearing in support of Miss Sullivan and Montgomery are such popular players as Alan Hale, Hedda Hopper, George Meeker, Mae Marsh, DeWitt Jennings, Sarah Padden, Fred Kohler and Muriel Kirkland.

Grand Has New Version Of "Sorrell and Son"

"Sorrell and Son," a best selling novel of a decade ago, has retained its strong and compelling quality. It was made as a silent picture at that time, and now a new talkie version is offered again with H. B. Warner heading the cast of able English players. "Sorrell and Son" starts its week's run today at Loew's Grand theater. Warwick Deering wrote this novel of a father's lasting affection and devotion to his son.

The story is of an English war hero and his small son, and was filmed in England, in scenes of great beauty and delight. Captain Stephen Sorrell has returned from the war without a job, and he cannot find work to do. His wife, Dora, disgusted with her husband's failure, leaves him and their young son, Kit, for another man.

Sorrell's chief idea is to make his boy's life better than his own. For a time he tries to keep up appearances, but one night, when a job he has sought fails to materialize, Sorrell gives up the pretense and confesses his financial condition to the son.

Next day he gets a job as hotel porter. It is the beginning of a long period when he performs menial, ill-paid labor, but eventually he is able to get a better job and by the time Kit grows to young manhood, his father has become proprietor of the hotel.

Dora, who deserted her husband and son, returns, a wealthy, handsome widow, and tries to win Sorrell back, but he rebuffs her. Kit has studied to be a surgeon, and his career promises to be a brilliant one. After an operation, Kit contracts blood poisoning, due to a defect in the rubber gloves he wore while operating. His life is in danger, and Sorrell sees the son to whom he has devoted his whole life on the brink of death.

The experience is a moving one. It serves to create a stronger bond between father and son, and to aid the young man in winning the love of Molly, a pretty young novelist, who has previously refused to marry him.

NRA DROPS POLICY OF PRICE FIXING

It shall be "the lowest reasonable cost"—not a profit-covering figure for the majority of enterprises.

3. Open price posting—which means letting all competitors know every other competitor's price—will be allowed only on these terms: That the prices be reported to a neutral, confidential agency; they shall become effective immediately without a waiting period for powerful competitors to argue the original price into line with their own figures; prices may not be revised upward for 45 hours, but they may be cut right away and so reported.

Laws Revived.

A provision which virtually revived the full force of the anti-trust laws for violators said:

"No member of the industry shall enter into any agreement, understanding, combination or conspiracy to fix or maintain price terms, nor cause or attempt to cause any member of the industry to change his price terms by the use of intimidation, coercion, or any other influence inconsistent with the maintenance of the free and open market which it is the purpose of this article to create."

NRA declared itself in favor of "properly drawn open price provisions" so as to level out competitive extremes while "without unduly curtailing private initiative or destroying incentives to any individual legitimately to extend his business."

Cargill Confers With Atlantans On Chattahoochee River Project

Further consideration of plans following recognition by a governmental committee of the project for an inland waterway from Atlanta to Columbus and thence to the Gulf of Mexico was discussed in Atlanta Thursday when J. Ralston Cargill, of Columbus, president of the Chattahoochee Valley & Gulf Association, came here to confer with members of the Atlanta freight bureau.

Feasibility of the plan for such a waterway along the Chattahoochee from Atlanta to Columbus was given by army engineers after a thorough study for the president's special committee making a survey to determine the best system of making use of the nation's resources, particularly from the standpoint of waterways.

Mr. Cargill, while in Atlanta Thursday, conferred with E. L. Hart, secretary of the Atlanta freight bureau, and during the course of the informal conversation emphasis was placed upon the fact that Columbus and Atlanta interests should merge in a concentration of effort to bring about the development of the project.

The fact that Houston, Texas, many miles from the Gulf of Mexico, can claim an outlet to the sea by reason of an inland waterway, was given considerable thought during the conference. Atlanta, it was agreed, was farther from the Gulf than Houston, but, as the army engineers have pointed out, the plan is feasible.

The conference, with subsequent assurances by Mr. Cargill and official representatives of the Atlanta freight bureau, indicated that a "happy medium had been reached," and plans were discussed for a future conference to be held probably at Panama City, Fla., whenever Mr. Cargill should call such a meeting.

"I am happy, indeed," said Mr. Cargill, "to know that Atlanta is anxious to extend every assistance to the people of Columbus and the lower sections of the state of Georgia in the development of the Chattahoochee basin from the standpoint of navigation, power and flood control. Our conference today, we feel, was concerned with one of the most important steps taken in the future development of the state of Georgia and the entire southern coast of the United States."

J. P. Morgan Applies For State Charter

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan & Co. announced today that they had made application to the New York state superintendent of banks to continue as private bankers under the state banking laws.

English Zoo Attendant Killed by Caged Lions

WHIPSHADE, England, June 7. (AP)—L. Stetson, 26, a member of the staff of the big open air zoo, was mauled to death today by four lions when he tried to recover a hat which was blown into the lions' cage from a spectator's head.

Keepers shot two of the lions to death before they were able to get the body out of the cage. Women screamed and fainted in the midst of the horror-stricken crowd which watched the savage battle between the keepers and the beasts.

Stetson climbed a fence in an effort to get back the hat. He fell 17 feet from the top of the fence, landing on his head in the concrete pit below.

CONTROL BY STATE OF MENTAL CASES URGED BY JURORS

Recommendation that all private institutions for the care of mentally diseased within the state be under the control of the state board of health was made by the DeKalb county grand jury in a presentment before Judge J. Harold Hawkins late Thursday. Julius Scott is foreman of the grand jury.

The recommendations to the court said: "We have investigated a hospital conducted by Dr. Sam Kahn, an institution for the care of mental diseases. We find that this is mismanaged and is a very unsanitary place. We recommend that this institution be brought before the attention of the state board of health and before further grand juries of this county."

"We recommend also, that the legislature of the state of Georgia immediately enact laws which will require that this institution, and all similar institutions, wherever people are confined, be placed under supervision of the state board of health."

RICHARD N. FICKETT DIES AT RESIDENCE

Funeral Rites Sunday Morning for Pioneer
Resident of Atlanta.

Richard Nathaniel Fickett Sr., pioneer resident of Atlanta, and a native of Marietta, died at 3 o'clock Thursday morning at his residence, 856 Gordon street, S. W., where he had been ill for many weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at the Tabernacle Baptist church, Dr. W. H. Knight will preach the funeral service. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Fickett, born in Marietta, August 17, 1847, came to Atlanta during the War Between the States. At the time of his death he was a member of the Fickett Manufacturing Company and had engaged, extensively, in Atlanta real estate transactions.

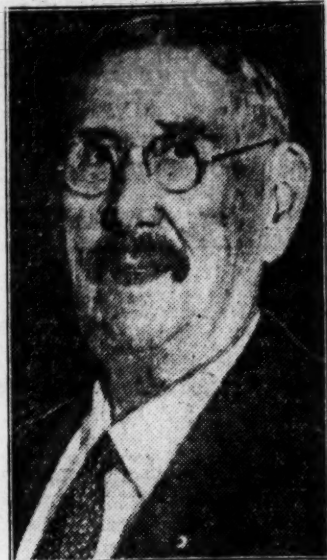

While a boy, and before coming to Atlanta, Mr. Fickett witnessed the Battle of Kennesaw Mountain, and this epic in the history of the nation always retained a place in his memory.

Traveled Extensively.
During his early life in Atlanta, Mr. Fickett became well known as a traveling salesman he visited almost every city and town of any consequence in the United States and Canada. Consequently, his knowledge of affairs in this country and particularly conditions as they applied locally in other communities, was above that of the average individual.

This period of his life was of particular pride to Mr. Fickett and it was his delight, always, to recount to friends experiences he had encountered as he traveled over the lanes of commerce in this country.

Mr. Fickett was the son of Richard

Taken by Death

RICHARD N. FICKETT SR.

Fickett, of Anderson, S. C., and Susan Harris Fickett, also of South Carolina. His father was an architect and builder and was instrumental in building the Old Soap Creek Mills, near Marietta.

Due to his own convictions, and his experiences as a traveler, Mr. Fickett, early in life, became very religious.

He joined the Tabernacle Baptist church in 1868, and was one of the founders of the institution. For many years he was the chairman of the board of deacons and for many years was a member of the board of the church.

Loyalty to Church.
His loyalty to his church, his religion and principles, is indicated by the fact that during his lifetime he often expressed the desire that his funeral services be conducted on Sunday, and at the Tabernacle Baptist church. Such, therefore, are the funeral arrangements.

On January 10, 1867, Mr. Fickett was united in marriage to Miss Mary Gaston. Mrs. Fickett died about five years ago.

Surviving him are two sons, Richard N. Fickett Jr., and Albert W. Fickett, and three daughters, Mrs. Mamie F. Brown, Mrs. Joseph G. Senn, and Mrs. Ralph Boulogny, of Charlotte, N. C., and ten grandchildren.

Mr. Fickett was a charter member of the Legion of Honor of Yaarab temple. His son, Richard Jr., was recently illustrious potentate of the temple.

During his lifetime he was also a member of Atlanta Council No. 18, United Commercial Travelers, and a member of Atlanta Lodge No. 59, F. & A. M.

POPE PIUS CELEBRATES LATERAN ANNIVERSARY

VATICAN CITY, June 7.—(AP)—Pope Pius and his papal court celebrated today the fifth anniversary of the ratification of the Lateran accord with Italy whereby the Vatican became an independent state and the pope a temporal sovereign.

The pontiff celebrated mass in his private chapel. The yellow and white papal flag waved from the principal buildings of the ecclesiastical city. Relations between the Vatican and Italy are today about the best they have been since the day five years ago when Mussolini drove into the papal city and exchanged with the then secretary of state, Cardinal Gasparri, the signatures of King Victor Emmanuel and Pope Pius XI.

Bronx Called Superior to Tahiti For Those With Romantic Illusions

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—To Hendrix Van Loon, author and lecturer, who is just back from a five-month cruise over the South Seas, the Bronx is a more romantic spot than Tahiti.

"If you have romantic illusions," he counseled, "go to the Bronx, but never to Tahiti."

Thus did the self-confessed educator of children and author of books simplifying world geography and world history dispel the traditional magic glory of the isles of the South Seas—those fabled spots whose glamorous names and picture-book sunsets for centuries have drawn the romantic wanderer.

"The Bronx," said Van Loon, "is neat and clean and, above all, a train for Manhattan is just around the corner. There you can preserve your illusions of romance."

"But Tahiti—nothing but small-town with a watch ticking in one vest pocket and a New England conscience ticking in the other. And there they sit making love to the brown-skinned maidens their New England consciences have made them marry and wondering what to do with their children that are neither one thing nor the other."

"Is it any wonder," asked Van Loon, "that they die of dry rot?" Then Van Loon produced a picture he had drawn of Tahiti. "See," he said, pointing to a row of trees, "How prim it is. You might as well be in New England."

From Tahiti in particular, Van Loon passed on to tropical regions in general as habitats for the white man. Commenting on the vital importance of Geography and climate as a factor in the development of individual civilizations he declared that, except as trading outposts, the tropics are "out" for the white man.

"He keeps his white skin, but psychologically he becomes a native. Something queer happens in his brain after two generations and we find a combination that can not survive."

Van Loon, who is something of an artist, is afraid that he is going to learn how to draw. "And that," he feels, "would be fatal. Now, I am good in my own lousy way. If I learned to draw I would be lousy in someone's else good way."

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

She Lost Fat High Blood Pressure

Here's Today's Live News
For Fat Women—and Men, Too
Read It—Please.

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly a year for my health, and for high blood pressure and rheumatism and it helped both. My blood pressure was as high as 200 when I started to take Kruschen. I weighed 255 and now I weigh 214. That is losing 41 lbs. in about nine months and I feel fine. Wouldn't go without Kruschen Salts in the house." Mrs. W. Eckoff, Saginaw, Mich.

Besides melting away ugly, excess fat Kruschen constantly keeps the bowels regular and free from waste that is always apt to poison the system.

Fat folks should give Kruschen a month's trial—it never disappoints—you'll feel so much better after taking one inexpensive jar which you can get at Jacobs' 18 drug stores, (mail orders filled) or any drugstore in the world—keeps you cooler in hot weather.—(adv.)

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?
Do you know why external remedies so seldom give quick and permanent relief?
Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?
That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts lifeless?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonard and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, and restores the affected parts.
HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that Jacobs' drugstores and all good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results—your money back.—(adv.)

Lives of Quintuple Dionne Babies Will Hang in Balance Two Months

CORBELL, Ont., June 7.—(AP)—The country doctor who has amazed the medical world by bringing the tiny Dionne quintuplets through more than 250 hours of life estimated guardedly today that it will be two months at least before they attain the life expectancy of a normal child at birth. Scientists have calculated the chances against a quintuple birth at 1,500,000 to 1, and the chances against all of them living are vastly greater.

But the five girl mites in the humble Ontario farm home, born May 28, tonight were improving with every fraction of an ounce they gained in weight. Dr. A. R. Dafeo, the physician in charge, reported an average gain of three-quarters of an ounce in 24 hours.

Yvonne and Cecile made no gain at all, but Emilie made up for her sisters' lack by increasing 3 1-2 ounces over her weight yesterday. Marie, tiniest and most fragile of the lot, gained a quarter of an ounce, and Annette one-eighth.

The bedside weights as Dr. Dafeo reported them today were: Yvonne, 38 3-4 ounces; Annette, 36 1-4 ounces; Emilie, 32 ounces; Cecile, 30 1-2 ounces; Marie, 25 1-2 ounces.

Yvonne sneezed several times yesterday and they were fearful she had caught cold, but the sneezing has not recurred and they think now it was merely a nostril irritation, possibly a particle of dust.

While Marie was being weighed today they noticed a birthmark that makes her identification doubly easy. It is a round mark on her back which, owing to the dark complexion of her skin, had not been noticed before.

Marie, because she has been in a separate incubator and because she is the smallest, has been the only one even the parents could readily identify. They are all "alike as peas," and have to wear identification tags.

Only one person, Miss Alice Mary Cloutier, Red Cross nurse, who has watched over them through crisis after crisis, can tell them apart.

"Emilie," she says, "is small, like Marie, but her face is bigger and her chin isn't so pointed. Cecile's hands are never quiet, always at her face or playing with the clothes. Her face is long, too, and tapered down to her chin. Yvonne is the biggest and darkest. Annette is just a little smaller and not quite so dark."

"Emilie and Marie, if they live, will be blondes. The rest are dark." Mrs. Ovila Dionne, the 24-year-old mother, is not recovering quite so fast as Dr. Dafeo had hoped yesterday. He decided against permitting her to leave her bed. There are no complications, however, and a few more days' rest is more precautionary than obligatory, he said.

Mrs. Dionne is looking eagerly forward to getting up. She has never before stayed in bed more than three days after childbirth, rising and going about her housework as many other Ontario mothers have done. But her life was in peril after the multiple birth and she contracted nephritis.

She is anxious to see her five other children, two of whom have contracted slight illnesses, and to resume the routine of her farm life.

QUINTUPLE BIRTH IN 1860

IN ONTARIO RECALLED

LINDSAY, Ontario, June 7.—(AP)—Victoria county once had a quintuple birth but it wasn't a happy event like that at the Dionne home in Corbell. Recalling the event, which happened in 1860, R. F. Whiteside, of Mariposa, said Mrs. Annie Bell gave birth to five children at the same time, but the mother and four of the children died. They were buried with her, two in each arm.

What became of the fifth child is not known.

DEATH TAKES SECOND OF DIONNE TWIN COUSINS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—(AP)—Death took the second of tiny twin cousins of the Canadian Dionne quintuplets today.

The other twin, born to Mrs. Aldo Beltrami, a first cousin of the father of the Canadian babies, died yesterday after less than 12 hours of life.

Dr. Abraham Bernstein said the twins, each weighing less than three pounds, arrived two months earlier than expected.

3 KILLED BY BLAST IN VIRGINIA QUARRY

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 7.—(AP)—Three men were killed and one other severely injured by a dynamite explosion at the Fox Brothers stone quarry near Monticello this morning.

The dead: R. A. Fox, Greenwood, a member of the contracting firm which operates the quarry; Paul Smith, Batesville, laborer; Minor Cook, laborer, Greenwood.

The injured man was Clarence Dowell, Greenwood, laborer.

The four men were engaged in loading a hole with dynamite when the blast went off prematurely, hurling them away or burying them under the rock torn loose.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE PINE.

The promptness with which President Roosevelt placed his stamp of approval on the proposal for establishing a great pulp and newsprint industry in the south, in keeping with the successful experiments conducted with southern slash pine by Dr. Charles H. Herby, at Savannah, reaffirms his previous great interest in the progress of those experiments and the possibilities that they offer.

Confronted by his statement that the establishment of a great wood pulp and newsprint industry in the south, thus greatly reducing or eliminating importation of these products from abroad, would interfere with the sale of our agricultural products to foreign countries, and therefore could not be recommended, Professor Mordcaai Ezekiel at first denied having made such a statement, but when the president started a quiet inquiry into the matter the professor suddenly remembered it.

It appears incredible!

Here is a man supposedly intelligent enough to advise a federal department of the government, who after propounding an unsound economic idea, turns thumbs down on a project which would open up a new industry in the south that would provide continuous employment for thousands, utilize millions of waste timber land, provide a new crop for farmers, and keep at home $170,000,000 that now goes every year to foreign countries—and then forget all about it!

The fallacy of the professor's idea is apparent when it is recalled that most of that $170,000,000 goes to Canada, and Canada is an integral part of the British Empire, which has trade agreements with Canada by which the dominion gives preference to Great Britain over the United States on imports.

The nation is to be congratulated that it has a president who can see farther than his nose, who will encourage and aid any feasible project for the betterment of agriculture and industrial conditions of the nation, and who, while he may have a few "brain trusters" about him as advisers, is not swayed by their opinions when they are wrong.

The president is right in the position that reforestation should be an integral part of the program. Slash pine grows to maturity so rapidly that replanting of areas stripped for pulp wood could be made a continuous process, guaranteeing a perpetual supply.

The president disclosed that he was heartily in favor of the new industry, and it is within the realm of probability that a way may be found to use federal funds in establishing the first mill.

"The Book of the South," a deluxe volume issued by the Protective Life Insurance Company, of Birmingham, to commemorate its silver anniversary, and edited by John Temple Graves II, comprises in its 100 pages a condensed history of every southern state, with statistics relating to their agricultural and industrial achievements. The volume is illustrated in a splendid manner with photographs that are particularly typical of what may be termed the new south, from the marketing of cotton to the great hydroelectric plants of Alabama. Noted for his skill as a finished writer, Mr. Graves, the editor, has contributed to literature a volume that will be read with pleasure and profit, and preserved for future reference.

CUBA'S FREEDOM.

An interesting feature of the recently signed treaty between this country and Cuba, by which we agree to stand hand off, is how this is going to affect United States investments in Cuba, chief of which is the sugar industry.

It will be just too bad if those investments cannot take care of themselves; but since the United States has agreed to refrain from interfering in any manner with Cuban internal affairs, it is up to them to do the best they can.

Cuba, of course, must realize that it is to her interest to deal fairly with American investments in the sugar industry on the island. Should she do otherwise this country would have other means than actual aggression to deal with the hostile attitude of our island neighbor, with which we wish to be friendly.

We have recently made a marked concession to Cuba in enlarging the quota of sugar shipments to this country and in making a reduction in the tariff rate. This means much to Cuba.

Should her government be unable to suppress any overt act of hostility against American interests in the republic, a reduction of the sugar quota and an increase in the tariff would do more in a week to assure fair treatment than the whole American fleet could do in a month.

Cuba is probably learning that freedom does not mean merely the signing of a few papers. She is still faced with the problem of winning her economic freedom, now that the United States has signed a new treaty which relinquishes the protectorate which we maintained through the Platt amendment.

The Platt amendment, which was much in the news a year ago during the rule of President Gerardo Machado, who was forced to flee his country and who now remains a fugitive in this country, made it mandatory on the United States to intervene in Cuba should it become necessary to do so in order to maintain law and order and protect the rights of our and other nations' nationals.

The amendment was a sore spot with the fiery and temperamental Latin, both in Cuba and in South America.

Now that the new treaty cancels this amendment, Cuba apparently finds, after a brief celebration, that there is no real change.

The problems of Cuba are inevitably bound up with this country. She must look to us for trade and for a market for her own goods. Cuba may be free politically, but she can never be free economically as long as she is a one-crop nation with sugar as that crop. And she must deal fairly with American interests in that industry.

Retention of a naval base in Cuba by the United States was to be expected. In case of war it would be necessary to have a base in Cuba. This must be patent to Cuba, to ourselves and to all nations. It need not disturb the Cubans, the treaty specifying our rights and restricting them to the confines of the naval base.

Cuba, cursed with illiteracy and the evil results from closed schools and cruel force in the past few years, still has much to do to attain her real freedom.

OUR WEATHER.

The devastating drought which grips the middle west, taking a toll of $2,000,000 damage daily, again brings sharply to our attention the fact that we know very little about our weather.

It was years ago that Mark Twain was credited with the statement that people were always talking about the weather, but no one did anything about it. But we are doing lots about it. Tremendous sums are spent each year on weather investigations. But while science has made wide advances in other fields the physical science of weather continues to be something of a mystery.

Admiral Richard Byrd is now snowed under at a point 150 miles south of Little America. He is to study weather conditions all this summer. From Little America comes a report of a warm spell of weather. This may be nothing unusual, but Byrd believes it is.

The United States first began to study weather through government agencies in 1842. The present weather bureau was established in 1891.

It might be worth while, in view of the terrific damage which a drought or flood can do, to spend more money and direct some of our better scientific minds to the problems of weather.

We are able to predict from day to day with something approaching accuracy. But the real explanation of barometric changes eludes us. The field seems to be too restricted. Anything which can bring about as much suffering and damage as the present drought is worth the attention of our best scientific minds and our financial support as a nation.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The Coming Massacre.

I have always said that Streicher, Count von Reventlow, Goebbels and Goering will not rest content until there has been a massacre of the Jews in Germany. Before their "Putz" the Hitlerites talked of the "night of the long knives." They did not dare carry that promise into effect. The indignation throughout the world over their first deeds checked them. So they applied the "cold" pogrom, they tried to starve the Jews out of existence. But with the economical situation worsening at a phenomenal rate, they are taking courage again. Goebbels writes in the Angfuhrer: "The Jews are still too arrogant. They must not think they are as good as others. I want them. This is an official warning. What do you want to do to break that spirit of Jewish arrogance?" Two million five hundred thousand storm troopers, a government apparatus with three separate sets of security police, an army, a judiciary, millions of Germans—and 400,000 Jews, men, women and children. And the latter not waging war. These Jews silent with terror. On the other side: Liebermann, supermen. So they call themselves. I call Goebbels and his clique a gang of cowards, frustrated intellectuals and amiable assassins.

Darrow and Johnson.

Mr. Clarence Darrow's report on the operation of the NRA, which has drawn the fire of General Johnson, the national recovery administrator. One curious issue raised by the controversy is that introduced by the general, when in reply to some critics that Mr. Roosevelt is steering in the direction of communism, declares that fascism and communism are alien to the American spirit. Of course there isn't the slightest indication that Mr. Roosevelt is moving toward communism. Has he confiscated any private property? In Russia Madame Krupskaya, the widow of Lenin told one last year, when I asked her if she were happy to live under communism: "But we have no communism in Russia and we won't have it for perhaps another thousand years. All we are trying to do is build socialism." That's a well-known trick. When you don't like a certain movement or person, the first thing that is said against the movement or person is the charge of communism or its alien origin. It always seems to work. It stimulates old prejudices which had much better be left dormant and dead. The NRA administration is a 100 per cent American experiment, carried out by Americans, and has nothing to compare it within Europe. All those insinuations about the alien origin of the ideas being worked out by the president, the charge that Mr. Roosevelt's real name is Rosenfeld, of Jewish origin, must all be brought home to the same sources. It is irrelevant and puffing criticism. The main issue is what is the best policy for America? Are we moving ahead or not? Can the critics show us a better way? Whether Mr. Roosevelt's grandmother parted her hair on the right or the left is of no immediate concern in this matter. Let the man work!

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

A Little Knowledge of Bacteriology

Is Dangerous. By a little knowledge I mean what the wiseacre layman knows. If you stop to think where the wiseacre layman gets his knowledge you will understand what I mean, all right.

Two items, the petroleum and the oil of salve, in the medicine cupboard (the gist of it will be given in a booklet under the title "The Medicine Cupboard") when the present series is in the market, are in collapsible tubes. Not because collapsible tubes are more expensive or finer than jars or boxes, but because collapsible tubes preserve their contents from contamination. Jars of ointment, if left open, are hard to keep uncontaminated after they are once opened and some of the salve taken out.

The popular custom of keeping a box of ointment in the medicine cupboard under some proprietary trade name in the house and dipping into it whenever any of the unction is needed, is altogether bad. This salve, like many others that may be found in the medicine cupboard, permits bacterial growth if the bacteria are planted in it, even if it does not serve as an actual culture medium. And only a physician or a nurse trained in special aseptic or the principles of surgical or sanitary cleanliness, knows how to remove ointment from an open box or jar without contaminating the ointment left in the container.

The wiseacre layman has a half baked idea that a dash or a whiff of a mere mention of some "powerful" antibiotic or germicide constitutes the essential part of what he calls "antiseptic precautions." His shallow mind is easily impressed by white enamel, nickel plate and strange odors.

The modern surgery some antiseptic may be used in preparing the field of operation, or for the first aid disinfection of an accidental wound, but after that the skilled surgeon or physician rarely uses any other antiseptic than plain, soap and water. Likewise in modern medical practice the physician and nurse trained in caring for patients ill of communicable germ diseases rely wholly upon plain soap and water cleanliness plus special knowledge of the technique of asepsis.

The repeated application of antiseptic liquids to the mucous lining of throat, nose or mouth is of doubtful advantage in any case and is certainly a detriment in many cases. Of course no such antiseptic can have any influence on the germs which are actually established in the tissue, and doing the harm, and if the antiseptic removes or disposes of any germs that may be free in the secretions of nose, mouth or throat, what of it? The germs are not having the patient's attention anyway. The antiseptic may possibly lessen the chance of passing the disease on to others, but won't tell me anybody bothers about that.

The repeated or constant application of antiseptics to wounds, burns and other lesions only retards "the natural healing process. Once the wound has been disinfected or rendered clean the best treatment is a careful let-alone policy. That is by no means a simple matter, but often the ingenuity of the best physician and surgeon. But the sensible layman can best follow this policy by avoiding unnecessary re-dressings and avoiding the use of "antiseptic" and "disinfectant" nostrums. A protective dressing of petroleum from a collapsible tube, or perhaps oil of salve if the wound is painful or irritated, or flexible colloid, or dry gauze and bandage, or adhesive plaster, is much more conducive to prompt healing.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

DROUTH WASHINGTON, June 7.—There is no drouth of explanations for the midwest drouth. If the afflicted area were as wet as most of the explanations are, it would be having a flood.

The most fantastic tale being passed around is the one about the Japanese current. It is whispered that this source of north-west and midwest rains has changed its course. Its moisture now is deposited further east, thus explaining the heavy winter of snow and rain in the north Atlantic states.

Those who tell this yarn predict that the northwest and middle west may eventually become as dry as the Sahara. The main trouble with this explanation is that the Japanese current has not changed. The best experts have measured it to an inch. What did change was the flow of arctic winds. They came down the Hudson bay route this year, instead of farther west. That happens about once every 40 years. At least, it occurred in 1859 and in 1894.

It is not likely to happen again until 1975, which is certainly nothing to worry about now.

FACTS Many of the absurd explanations are based on the superstition of heavenly wrath. Those need not be answered in the face of scientific proof that the phenomenon is only a 40-year quirk of nature.

But there is one other more sensible theory. It is that vast public lands in and near the northwestern Rockies have been so closely grazed by sheep that there is no grass left to retain moisture. Hence, this moisture flows off to the sea, instead of being absorbed by clouds, which would ordinarily deposit it in the drouth region.

If there is anything in this theory, it is certainly not more than a bucketful. The best scientists here say the drouth region would never miss the rain it loses from this source, if it loses any.

The rain for the drouth area normally comes from three sources—the Pacific, the Gulf of Mexico and (during the summer) re-precipitation in near-by areas. The failure of re-precipitation is what caused the drouth several years ago and was a contributing factor this spring. That is, the clouds failed to suck up moisture from the ground and deposit it elsewhere in its usual rotating system. Don't ask a scientist why. That is one of the things he has not found out yet.

However, as long as there is any water left in the Pacific and the Gulf of Mexico, the middle west and northwest can expect the rainfall which has made it the food-giving center of the world.

DAMAGE The bold truth is the drouth story has not been told and cannot be told. A different local situation exists on ever farm and a continuing situation. The havoc may not be evident for weeks or months.

There is no way to reduce such a condition to headlines which would convey a striking idea to the public mind. For one thing, you cannot tell accurately how many people are affected or how much relief money is needed. Neither can you take a news picture of a drouth.

One thing is certain. The administration is thoroughly aroused, inside and out. It has enough money and enough power to handle a dozen drouths.

This will unquestionably minimize the full effect of conditions on business.

WAR DEBTS The inside excuse for the existing stalemate in war debts is that President Roosevelt planned it all out with a purpose.

Those nearest the big swivel chair in the White House explain we had to get into the situation we are in now before we could collect more than mere token payments. Also, that Mr. Roosevelt had to let congress force a default so it could get the "hate" out of its system. That is why he approved the Johnson amendment. Now, when the fact sinks in that we are not going to get a dime, he can get somewhere with negotiations for readjustment of the debts so that we can get as much money as possible.

You may have to stretch your imagination to believe it was all planned out that way in advance, but you can be reasonably sure it will end in accordance with this explanation.

Negotiations will be resumed some time in the future and we will get as much out of the debts as we can. However, ultimate settlement is a long way off, probably years off.

FLUTTER The British ambassador's most embarrassing moment lately was when his majesty's government discovered that he let out the war debt note here too soon.

His majesty's government is holding the state department responsible, but the department credits the error to Sir Ronald Lindsay. Apparently, London did not want the note made public until the afternoon of June 5, after the opening of the house of commons. Sir Ronald authorized the state department here to give it out almost 24 hours earlier. It was called back to London and the British foreign office was amazed to read it in British newspapers.

Such things cause a awful flutter in diplomatic circles. This government may have to explain informally to the British foreign office.

NOTES One republican senator has long had his reservations to go home tomorrow and says he is going to adjourn, whether congress does or not.

The administration is having much trouble dealing out to the steel people the same agreement which was given to automobiles, but that will be the basis of the final steel labor arrangement.

Mr. Roosevelt's timing of drouth relief steps shows how he works. He swung into action before demands for relief were made. The agriculture department gave him advance information.

The best story written about Mr. Roosevelt's efforts to put the labor and housing bills through congress by vague indirection was written by W. H. Grimes, of the Wall Street Journal. He wired his newspaper: "President Roosevelt, quarterback of the New Deal, today called the signal for the hidden ball play."

The Game Always Stops When One Player Wins All the Marbles

By Robert Quillen

People who see no fault in machinery overlook the truism that every device becomes a vice when carried to extremes.

Machines that rescued man from drudgery and enabled him to produce necessities in greater abundance were unmixed blessings. The reaper, the steam engine, the linotype, the sewing machine and the automobile remade the world and multiplied its wealth beyond reckoning. Where they ended one man's job, they made new jobs for hundreds.

And machines like these equipped mankind, for the first time in history, to produce abundance for everybody.

But machine production, given free rein, must inevitably reach the saturation point.

If every individual in America had money to buy everything he desired, it would still be possible to build enough machines to manufacture more than everybody could use. Man's ability to consume is limited, but machinery's ability to produce is not.

The present stalemate, however, was not caused by man's inability to consume, but by his inability to purchase.

When a new machine does the work of 10 men without creating new demands to provide new jobs, it decreases by 10 the number who can buy the machine's product. Thus, the more efficient machinery becomes, the more certainly it defeats its purpose.

Eventually the machines stand idle because the few who own and operate them cannot consume their product, and the many, being jobless and without income, cannot buy it.

What can be done about it? Shall we scrap the machines and return to the hand labor of the ancients? That would be stupid. It is unintelligent and immoral to destroy anything useful while many suffer for want of it.

There is, then, but one alternative. By some means—call it what you will—the machines must support the men they displaced. That is being done now, but in the wrong way. We are doing in the name of charity the thing we should do in the name of reason. The machines are taxed to provide a camouflaged dote for the jobless, and both the machine owners and the jobless feel aggrieved.

Men will solve the problem, of course, but not by plowing up cotton while millions need more sheeps.

House Votes Exemption On Hog Processing Tax

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—The house today voted to exempt farmers from paying the processing tax on 100,000 pounds of live weight hogs slaughtered annually for sale.

It passed without a record vote and sent to the senate the Flannagan, democrat, Virginia, bill to increase the exemption fixed by the farm administration from 300 pounds annually per farmer.

It is intended to aid farmers who raise and butcher two or three hogs for sale each year.

The house also sided the bill by Representative Mitchell, democrat, Tennessee, for a 2,000-pound exemption.

On Gambling News.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—

Just a year ago that James Farley, who learned about people through practical experience as one of them, decided that it would not harm the morals of the citizens to let them know certain facts of life which had been withheld from them by his predecessor in the postoffice department, Walter Brown. Reminded one day that the postoffice had been censoring the news of the Irish lottery on the English Derby, forbidding publication of the names of the winners, including Americans, and the extent of their luck, Mr. Farley said that under his administration the newspapers could go ahead and print the news of the lottery.

This may not have been entirely a favor to American journalism, because, during the years when they were forbidden to circulate the news of the lottery, the newspapers were relieved of a difficult and expensive job of news coverage. It did seem that the issue of the freedom of the press involved in the law which Mr. Brown had invoked was just as clear as anything in the code which was to cause such excited protest and rile Mr. Roosevelt's temper later on.

But in this instance, the fourth estate seemed to enjoy its chains. If it had been legal in the public interest to print the news of the bootleg liquor market and picture stories of Rum Row, it was a peculiar discrimination to forbid lottery stories on the mere ground that lotteries were illegal in this country. Moreover, the same government which made this fine distinction looked without disfavor on the publication of the results of horse races, dog races and offered no objection to the daily Wall Street stock tables.

Farley Sees

No Moral Peril.

Now, after a year's trial, Mr. Farley sees no moral peril. He is well pleased with his decision and not at all alarmed over the moral consequences to the people. They had bought large numbers of lottery tickets even during Mr. Brown's time and these tickets, like the alcoholic beverages which were smuggled goods, if the citizens are buying more lottery tickets now, still contrary to the customs laws, that can hardly make the case any worse. After the first few hundred thousand violations of the law, the law begins to look questionable, and further violations might be interpreted as an expression of the popular will.

It may be a policy of the New Deal to humor the citizens in the enjoyment of their little vices in the hope that they will be diverted from their vices. Certainly, what with repeal, the waiver of the lottery censorship and the new laws in various states permitting open gambling, the hope is that life is much more free if not more easy than a year ago, and if one kind of regimentation has been imposed on the populace under Mr. Roosevelt's administration, on the other hand, to the individual, more bothersome kind has been abolished.

Even in Arkansas, without troubling the citizens with the sanction in the form of a repeal, the governor and the local authorities decided that the horses may be allowed to run and the citizens may gamble their fortune in their judgment. And, in Washington, where for many years prize fighting and aiding and abetting were legally akin to housebreaking and larceny, the law has now been amended so that pugilists may now assault one another with fists and rights to the face and body as openly as the law used to require the pugilists to wear boxing gloves in the dairy lunch. She could have been shot for that in the days of regimentation.

RAINFALL EASES DROUGHT PRESSURE

Roosevelt Prepares To Ask $525,000,000 To Re- lieve Midwest Distress.

By the Associated Press.
Rainfall smeared the national drought picture while government relief machinery, compelled by the need of 50,000 victims in the farm belt, stood ready Thursday to alleviate the misery, idling temporarily for President Roosevelt's Saturday message to Congress.

Related precipitation blanketed many sections in the middle west drought region, soaking spots where drifted soil was turned into mud. Receiving the long delayed water alike were wheat fields that experts said were past saving and lands on which corn and forage crops had been planted and which now gave promise of at least some harvest.

$525,000,000 To Be Asked.

The president, having estimated that more than 125,000 families in the grain producing west had suffered irreparably in the drought, prepared to ask Congress for a $525,000,000 purse with which to spread relief. Leaders in Capitol Hill predicted speedy passage so that the program, already framed, could be pushed.

The first weather bureau bulletin in six weeks telling of more than "light scattered showers," described "good general rains," averaging from 1.2 to 1 inch or more in the Dakotas, northern Nebraska, western Minnesota, central Montana and northwestern Iowa. Scattered light rains were reported elsewhere.

Extent and importance of rain relief given blighted regions since Sunday had not been determined, but crop experts generally were convinced conditions, although acute, could get no worse. Wheat, they said, benefited little, as destructive damage already had been done. Private estimates predicted a huge decrease in the 1934 wheat crop, some asserting the loss would be enough to almost wipe out the carryover surplus.

Small Grains Saved.

Corn, small grain crops that mature later than wheat, forage plants and pastures, however, were saved from total destruction by timely rains. Harvests, however, would be cut materially, experts said. Loss of livestock, much of which was butchered hurriedly because of food shortage while market demands slumped, was great.

Drenching showers in South Dakota permitted plantings of corn and emergency feed crops, reviving dried pastures. Charles D. Reed, Iowa crop authority, said the drought in that state had not been broken despite heavy rains which did much to aid, to arrest damage than to repair it.

either for beef or milk, we strongly recommend that they be consigned to the cans and delivered to relief agencies, but in no manner to enter the regular channels of trade for beef." A replacement program was advocated, but with the explanation that "any cattle received from the drought area for replacement purposes should be held to rigid inspection for diseases and should grade as far as beef cattle are concerned from high medium to choice feeder and stockers and brooders."

It was further recommended that lenient financial arrangements be set up to handle the replacement program, that each state have a committee of producers to pass on cattle destined for the southeast, and that existing facilities be arranged in southeastern states for the culling of native and inferior bred cattle "which in part may offset cattle shipped in."

The producers also suggested a survey to determine the number of acres of permanent and temporary pasture available in the southeast and the number of farmers in the drought area desiring to rent pasture on a cash basis or exchange of cattle for pasture.

The meeting was called by W. B. Mount, member of the federal drought relief board, and was attended by about 75 delegates from Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to do anything but make you feel bloated and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

LEAF GRADING CLAUSE DEFEATED IN HOUSE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, June 7.—Although commanding the support of Majority Leader Byrnes and a number of his colleagues on the House floor, Representative Braswell Deen, of Alma, was defeated in efforts to add an amendment to the Kerr tobacco acreage reduction bill which would have authorized the secretary of agriculture to provide for official grading and inspection of tobacco.

The Deen amendment was ruled out on a point of order made against it by Representative Hope, of Kansas. Hope successfully contended that the amendment was not germane to the bill "which relates solely to the reduction of acreage." However, Deen and Homer S. Parker, of Georgia, supported the bill on final passage.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Deen, "this is a good bill and ought to pass. I have urged adoption of my amendment because growers of tobacco in my district and in the southern part of Georgia carry their tobacco to warehouses where bids are offered by buyers without the benefit of government grading and inspection. Prices at the warehouse vary from 40 to 100 per cent and I know of one case where a grower received a bid of 7 cents a pound for a truckload of tobacco in the morning and on the afternoon of the same day the tobacco was offered for sale on the floor of another warehouse in the same city where it brought 15 cents a pound."

Representative Parker expressed keen disappointment at the action of the house in refusing to accept the Deen amendment.

VINSON MOVES TO AID INDUSTRY

States forest service of potential utilization of southern pine for these and other purposes will give scientific conclusions as to whether the methods so far developed are likely to be commercially feasible," he said. "If they do seem commercially feasible, and if the people of this country are willing to have public funds expended for experimenting with new industries, I am quite certain that none of the economic advisers will object to such experiments."

"It does seem, however, that if the public is to risk its money to carry on such experiments, we should fix the eventuality that new industries thus established should remain under public control, so as to give the public the benefit of the income from these experiments if they prove successful."

GAS, EXPRESS RATE HEARINGS CALLED

Utilities Commission Calls Two More Service Groups for Investigation

The Georgia public service commission Thursday cited all gas companies operating in the state to show cause why rates should not be reduced. The express companies will appear July 9 and the gas companies one week later.

Although nothing but formal announcement of the citation came from the commission, it was learned from authoritative sources that the citing of the gas companies does not necessarily mean that a rate reduction will be ordered. Members of the commission are known to have already made a private study into gas rates and are said to be pretty generally satisfied with the rates now in effect. It was believed that the citation was for the purpose of getting up a record on gas schedules and with the idea that some circumstance of rate structure, not developed in the private investigations, might be brought to light at a public hearing.

The express companies also were cited to show cause why all extra charges should not be eliminated.

In issuing the two citations, the commission completed the calling of all types of utilities under its control. Other utilities have been cited previously.

The commission today will resume its investigation into telephone rates, hoping to conclude this inquiry by Saturday noon and clear the way for railroad freight investigation which is scheduled to begin Monday morning.

FRANCE CUTS INTEREST ON TREASURY BONDS

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—The government lowered interest rates on treasury bonds again today in furtherance of its campaign to aid business with cheaper money.

The rate on treasury paper issued for periods of three months to a year was fixed at 2.75 per cent, a reduction from 3 per cent, while the national defense bonds were reduced from 3-1/2 to 3 per cent.

The government decided to withhold until after June 30 the new 3,000,000-franc defense loan.

Avondale Gardens Are Visited.

In a tour of gardens which featured the June meeting of The Avondale Garden Club, the distinctive feature of each was brought out in the fact that Mrs. W. H. Gouldner's garden, the ivy-covered rock wall, makes an artistic background for her beautiful perennial border. Mrs. J. E. Gee's garden is of the old-fashioned type with poppies, larkspur and coreopsis making a glowing mass of color. Mrs. Earnest Pope's fence garden covered with pink roses was especially noteworthy. Mrs. Pope won a prize in a national contest for a photograph of this fence.

Entering Mrs. J. L. Bond's garden the visitors were enchanted by the lively vista with the cool shady nook at the extreme end. Mrs. Ben S. Forkner's fruit arbors in a beautiful setting of old-fashioned flowers were especially attractive. In Mrs. Inez Smith's garden there are various kinds of flowers, shrubs and trees, but a colorful sunburst climber attracted much attention. Mrs. Frank Ship's new home in a setting of old shade trees has a rose garden of unusual beauty. Mrs. Harley Brown's attractive outdoor living room around the pool gave evidence of how much can be accomplished in a short time. Mrs. L. E. Green's garden is a veritable sea of pansies with a beautiful border of both perennials and annuals. The garden of Mrs. S. L. Jones is artistically planned and terraced with walks of century old flagstones and a box-wood hedge also quite old.

The tour ended at the home of Mrs. Byron Harris, the president, in whose well-planned garden the beautiful larkspur and large ruffled pink petunias were most attractive. Mrs. Harris served refreshments in the club colors of pink and green, the tea table having for a centerpiece a lovely bowl of pink sweet peas and gypsophila.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Ann Sothorn.)

You Can Take Perfect Care of Your Hair at Home and Here Is How

By MIGNON.

Beauty treatments at home for girls who can't give up the time for them in shops during the day time are of special interest always. So many girls want to know how to give themselves a hair treatment at home, and how to get the most out of their hair. Here is a simple way to take one, and it is effective. I know, because I take one every Sunday in just this way:

First rub a good oil into the scalp. Warm the oil and it will soak in much quicker. After you have, with a wad of cotton, thoroughly wet the scalp all over with the oil, massage your scalp to loosen it. This should not take more than 10 or 15 minutes.

Then take a heavy bath towel and wring it out in very hot water. Roll the towel and dip the center into the hot water, keeping the ends almost dry. Then twist the ends opposite ways, and in this way you can wring out a very hot towel without getting your hands overheated.

Unwind the roll of towel, leaving it doubled at least twice. Wrap this very warm towel about your head. The steam will help the hair and scalp to become thoroughly saturated with the oil and help drive it in. Repeat this several times.

Then when you feel that you have fed your scalp all the oil possible for one treatment, shampoo your hair. There are several olive oil shampoos, and there is olive oil soap to use for this if you prefer the cake soap. Use very warm water, but not too hot, and add the color of the hair, especially if it is gray. Rinse very thoroughly.

Get the soap out by using a spray which fastens to the bathtub faucet and seal the tub and lean over. This gives you ample opportunity to use all the water you need.

Many prefer a vinegar or lemon rinse to plain water, because it so quickly cuts the soap and leaves the hair soft. But again you must rinse the vinegar out of your hair. This is not difficult. In fact, a vinegar rinse and a water rinse afterward is a short cut to the old process of running water through the hair a very long time to be sure there is no soap left in it.

Partly dry your hair by rubbing the scalp. Before it is entirely dry (you may use a comb) place the towel on your head. The towel should be rolled and pinned with invisible hairpins and then a three-cornered wide meshed net should be placed over the whole head.

You can then dry your hair with a hand dryer if you are in a hurry. I do this, but only long enough to warm the hair and get the drying started. Let the hair finish drying slowly. It will be much softer and prettier than if you use a great deal of hot air in the process.

This whole process once you are used to it takes about half or three-quarters of an hour. I can tell you about oil shampoos, olive oil soap and oil for the scalp if you are interested. that. Say, why don't we give them the raspberry?

"Not so fast, not so fast, my lady. It's we who have the raspberries for you, for I now leave to go to the refrigerator and bring in the raspberry whip which is to be eaten with your favorite chocolate cake."

The men did look sheepish for a minute, but when the two women went to the kitchen later to wash the dishes the men started in on the interrupted golf game proving that human beings talk about the thing that interests them.

"Let them talk about their old game, I say. I want to tell you about the rolls I made the other day. I called them twin rolls. I made them from two kinds of bread dough, entire wheat with a little yeast in it and white bread dough. I made both sponges in the usual fashion, added flour, kneaded the doughs, keeping them separate, of course. I let them rise again in the usual fashion. Then I broke off bits of the dough, oh about as large as a plum. I shaped the dough into a ball, brushed it with melted butter, put it into greased muffin tin and then placed in the same muffin cup another ball of entire wheat. The butter kept the two rolls from sticking together. But the buttery sides made it possible to break the roll into its twin parts easily. They surely made a hit. I should think they would, I am going to have them at next club meeting. They were as successful at the second party as at the first."

Friendly Counsel By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Now here come questions that are important to me though they may sound silly. I love a girl who says she likes me well enough but doesn't love me. Is it humanly possible for a girl to resist a man who loves her to distraction, thinks of her continually every waking hour, and dreams about her in sleep? Is it possible that such strong emotions have no power over the one who inspires them? How can you ever be certain that the friendship has turned to love, if it ever does? J. W.

Answer: One of the cruellest facts of life is that one may love another to the point of distraction and yet fail to elicit a like emotion from the loved one. Like begets like and love begets love in a general sort of way, but it sometimes happens that a girl who can love only one man at a time and marry only one at a time, has several men in love with her. She can so more control the current of her love than she can change the color of her eyes. She can no more explain the mystery of her choice than she can explain electricity.

Now it is true that propinquity plays a big part in love. Many a man has won a girl whom he could never have won if he hadn't been on the spot. Many a girl falls in love with a man altogether unsuitable because he is always near. It is sometimes said that a girl marries a man to get rid of him—in other words, she is so tired of the struggle to resist his entreaties that she just capitulates. Many times, when I feel the tug of affection that formerly bored her to tears then thrill her. The delicate attentions of the lover that once left her cold then give her a warm sense of exhilaration. She is responsive to his moods and his emotions. She is ready to talk of marriage; and as impatient as he to sign and seal the pact. Oh, when she loves him, he and she and all the world will know the secret.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Five years ago I began to go around with a boy whom I liked but didn't love. Finally I fell head over heels in love with him and we set our wedding day. A few weeks after our announced engagement I received a letter from him containing tragic news. His physician had told him that under no circumstances should he get married for a year, perhaps longer. I agreed to wait for him, to have no other dates. The time finally passed and one day I asked him if he had a clean bill of health from the doctor. He replied that he did. I assumed that he would then suggest another date for our wedding, but apart from vague remarks about what we will do when we are married and allusions to his pleasure at the thought of marriage there is nothing definite forthcoming in the way of a proposal. He is away most of the week and during his absence he always writes, wires and telephones and always comes home for the week-ends. Am I a fool to hang on to him? I love him

I can tell you about oil shampoos, olive oil soap and oil for the scalp if you are interested. ## CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

This Game Called Duplicate.

Duplicate bridge scored on the match point basis is very much of an artificial product. Overtricks assume an unreal value which does not exist in rubber bridge. However, it is a fact faced by every tournament player, and so the player who competes in duplicate soon learns to look long and earnestly for that overtrick which may mean "top on the board."

The hand below, played by Walter Malowan in a recent New York city tournament, is an example of how an expert player went after the extra trick.

West dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

♠ A K Q 7 3
♥ A 10
♦ 8 3
♣ K J 4 3

♠ J 8 6 4 2

♦ A K 7
♣ 10 5

The bidding:
West North East South
Pass 1♠ Pass 1NT
Pass 2♠ Pass 2NT
Pass 3NT Pass Pass

The contract is quite logical. South's hand is a maximum notrump takeout of the opening bid. The distribution makes it a much better response of two notrump after two spades discloses that the hand is not a minimum, as South can pass, and North, with an apparently established five-card suit and honor strength in two others, rightly elected to bid three notrump.

West had a rather difficult choice of a lead and eventually decided to open the deuce of spades, which Mr. Malowan permitted to run to the nine. It is, of course, apparent at this point that South can readily make nine tricks, as he can count four clubs, one heart and at least four spades. However, there was a chance for a top-score, and Mr. Malowan, suspecting that West held five spades originally, determined to play for a combined squeeze and end-play.

The second and third tricks were won with the king and ace of clubs in order, and at this point Mr. Malowan led the spade ten. West covered with the jack and the trick was won in dummy with the queen. Mr. Malowan then returned to his own hand by the lead of the third club, upon which West discarded the diamond seven. South now led the diamond queen, and West won with the ace, in order to conceal his holding of the king. He then returned the heart queen, which was won with the ace in dummy. The spade ace was now cashed, leaving the king, seven as a tenace over West's eight-six. Dummy's last club was then cashed, and West was again squeezed. He was a fine player, so, seeking to unblock and avert a possible end-play, he discarded the heart jack, rather than the five. It was in vain, however, as the heart ten was led from dummy, and East won with the king. At this point he had the choice between returning a diamond or a heart. He elected to lead the diamond, which West won, but then had nothing to do save to lead through the tenace in spades in the dummy.

Twin Rolls Are Half White and Half Entire Wheat

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

It was during the serving of refreshments that Jack and Bill began to look disgusted. "Honest to John, wouldn't you think that two girls could get together without talking recipes? Just get set for a nice discussion of the week-end golf game and there you are, set back in the corner so a couple of dames can hash over a cup of this and a half pint of that. Say, why don't we give them the raspberry?"

"Not so fast, not so fast, my lady. It's we who have the raspberries for you, for I now leave to go to the refrigerator and bring in the raspberry whip which is to be eaten with your favorite chocolate cake."

The men did look sheepish for a minute, but when the two women went to the kitchen later to wash the dishes the men started in on the interrupted golf game proving that human beings talk about the thing that interests them.

"Let them talk about their old game, I say. I want to tell you about the rolls I made the other day. I called them twin rolls. I made them from two kinds of bread dough, entire wheat with a little yeast in it and white bread dough. I made both sponges in the usual fashion, added flour, kneaded the doughs, keeping them separate, of course. I let them rise again in the usual fashion. Then I broke off bits of the dough, oh about as large as a plum. I shaped the dough into a ball, brushed it with melted butter, put it into greased muffin tin and then placed in the same muffin cup another ball of entire wheat. The butter kept the two rolls from sticking together. But the buttery sides made it possible to break the roll into its twin parts easily. They surely made a hit. I should think they would, I am going to have them at next club meeting. They were as successful at the second party as at the first."

The leaflet on "Yeast Dough" is yours by sending a self-addressed and stamped envelope to Nancy Page. Write her care of The Atlanta Constitution. The leaflet has many recipes for rolls and breads. (Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

RESTLESS WOMEN
BY JANE DIXON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

New York society is surprised when Pierre Reynal dies and leaves his wife, Corinne, and $50,000—a "mere pittance," she calls it. She turns to his wealthy bachelor brother, Raoul, who accuses her social aspirations and finally tries of her demands. When Sandra, her youngest daughter, is 18, and they are summering at Sand Harbor, Corinne is pressed by tradesmen and prevails upon Sandra to go to her uncle, whose fortune she is, she gives her $25,000 with the understanding that if her mother spends it foolishly Sandra is to come to live with him. The wealthy young Gilbert Akin seems on the point of proposing to Sandra, and does ask her to go with him to the climatic finale of the Sand Harbor season. Corinne convinces her that still is mere money, she is a parasite, and she goes alone with the half-drunken Gil to his yacht, hoping to get him to propose. The next day he goes upstairs him for having put her sister in a position where she is open to criticism. He elopes with Val and they go to Havana on their honeymoon. Corinne is counting on Val's marriage to get them out of their financial difficulties, but Sandra applies for a job as chorus girl. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

"I know," Sandra swung her feet, avoided his eyes. Then impulsively she jumped from the desk, threw her arms around Uncle Raoul's neck. "You're releasing me from the promise. Please darling. You want me to be happy, don't you? I couldn't be, knowing I was a parasite. I've seen how it works. I know Val. I know Corinne. I can't be like them. Say you forgive me."

Uncle Raoul stroked the coppery head. How like her father she was—a dreamer to whom dreams were dear. The theater. Unsteady. Precarious. Razzle-dazzle. No, the theater was not for a Reynal.

"You can't blither about in the theatrical world," he said firmly. "Young people of the theater are not the sort of friends you should have, not the sort I would want to think you would choose. They are very unstable. Their morals are not, as a rule, up to standard."

"Morals are what you make them, any place you go," Sandra thought of her own set—scorers, iconoclasts, cheaters at love, at marriage, at every moral and legal law that interfered with their own mad pursuit of pleasure. If the code of the theater was any worse than push over the cart and let the apples roll into the gutter.

"Fine philosophy, my dear, but impractical. To avoid contagion, keep away from contagious places." Uncle Raoul went on stroking her head. "But don't you see, Owl, I've got to decide for myself what is best for me to do, what I best can do? If I allow others to decide for me I'm back exactly where I started—being moved around, being restless and unhappy."

Uncle Raoul tilted Sandra's face to meet his searching gaze. His gentle eyes were stern. "The theater is no place for a Reynal," he said. "I am opposed to your earning your way on the stage. I must and do forbid it."

Sandra drew back, amazed at the iron in the word forbid. "Owl," she said, "you mean—if I go—if I dance professionally on the stage—"

"My heart and my pocketbook are closed to you. My doors will never be closed. I should prefer, however, that you do not use them until you have decided to respect my wishes."

"Owl," Sandra was near tears. "You're hard, like the others. You're not right to dictate how I shall earn my living. It's my life. It's my work. Why can't I live and work as I please? So long as it's a decent life, honest work?"

"Why?" The Owl was pacing the floor again. "Because, fortunately or unfortunately, you were born in a stratum of society where freedom of choice is not permitted. There's a debt you owe to your name, to your station. If you lower your standard you strike at the very vitals of a society that has been centuries in the building."

"It isn't building," Sandra protested hotly. "I'm building. You don't know, Owl. You haven't seen what's happening to us, the younger generation. Val and I, Bubbles Courtland, Sonny Warren, Gil Akin. We drink and gamble and tear each other to tatters. We go just as near the edge as we possibly can without getting burned. Plenty of us do get burned, but we laugh and try to hide the scars."

Uncle Raoul came to a stop. "Fiddsticks!" he said. "Young folks are no different from what they were in my day. They're steady as they go along. I haven't heard that the theater was a particularly fertile ground in which to search for morals."

"I hate disappointing you Owl," Sandra said huskily. "I've got to go on. No matter what happens, you know I love you, and that I'm grateful for what you have done for us. She made a gesture of throwing off the burden of the moment. "I'm off to rehearsal," she said.

A week after Sandra's visit to her uncle, Valerie returned home unexpectedly. Sandra, entering the Sutton Place apartment with every muscle of her body a separate ache from the grueling strain that was being put upon them at rehearsal, fought back a frown in high degree. Valerie, tight-lipped and stern, was noncommittal.

"Valerie says Mr. Akin has stopped off in Virginia to visit his parents," sniffed Mrs. Reynal. "Why she hasn't stopped with him, I don't know. The idea of a bride returning from the honeymoon without the bridegroom! I'm sure I don't know what people will think."

"Let them think what they please," Valerie snapped. "They've got to know some time."

"What must they know? What is there for them to know? You're not to be stubborn, my lady. You're to adjust yourself to your husband, to your new estate. And you're to remain indoors until Mr. Akin joins you. No one is to know you've come home like a spoiled child."

"My family seems delighted to have me," Valerie sneered. "Welcome nothing short of hilarious."

"Don't mind mother, Val," Sandra said, and dropped into a chair. Her feet were numb. "Of course she's glad to see you. How are all the folks in Havana? Is it giddy?"

"It's hateful." There was no mistaking Valerie's dislike. "I loathed it and everybody in it. He might have picked out some civilized place to flout me in."

Sandra thought: Gil has been horrid. He hasn't even tried to make things go. And Val, with all her beauty has failed to interest him even for a few weeks. She noticed that Valerie was looking remarkably well for an unhappy bride. Her lassitude was gone. She was alert, and the look of cunning had crept back into her eyes.

"Mother's engaged me a suite at Chez Clement," she said. "If you don't mind, I'd rather stop here, for the present."

"Indeed you'll stop here," Mrs. Reynal bristled. "I'll not have you showing your face among your friends. I don't see how, you could, under the circumstances. I'm off to a brawl."

"I'll do as I please about that," Valerie retorted. "You're no longer my keeper. It's ridiculous of you ordering me about, now I'm married."

"During her absence Valerie had acquired something of her mother's grand manner. Sandra smothered a smile. They were alike as twin infants cast in the same mold."

"Sandra rose. "I'm off to a brawl. Count me out for dinner." She thought Valerie might follow her to her room. No. Apparently confidence between them was at an end. Later, when Sandra came out to join Sonny Warren who called for her, Valerie was nowhere to be seen. In the morning when she left for rehearsal, the door of the room that had been Valerie's was closed and her mother cautioned her to be quiet.

"Valerie was having tantrums half the night," Mrs. Reynal explained. "I'm really alarmed. Whatever can have happened?"

"Temper, I suppose, or nerves. Don't nag her. Let her rest—and she'll come out of it."

"Indeed she will. I'll see to that, never fear."

Poor Val! There would be no rest for her in this house, Sandra knew. The press agent of the New Stuyvesant theater, veteran in the street of ballyhoo, furnished off a fresh set of superlatives and browsed about backstage to find how he might use them to the greater glorification of "Princess Pep."

Business was brisk. But if there is one thing in this world more uncertain than a political convention it is the show business. One never knows from one day to the next which way the public will veer. The boss had sunk a fortune in this girl opera. Not his own fortune, to be sure. The boss was too wise for that. Instead he had allowed a couple of opulent gentlemen interested in the development of art and personally in two of the more glorified young artists, to "come in" on the show. But the boss had his reputation as a glorifier to think about.

Ben Bernstein, ballyhoo expert extraordinary, betwixt him that for two days he had failed to provide the public with a fresh reason for concluding that "Princess Pep" was the hottest show in town. Something ought to be turned up somewhere. That is how he happened to emerge from the wings of the New Stuyvesant onto the stage at the very moment the new lace chorus bent its collective right knees upward to a position at right angles with its thighs, raised its right toes to point them at its audience, and romped feverishly into the dance that was to be an innovation in the glorification business.

"When!" Ben let out a low whistle. "Am I seeing things, or has Al put one over on me?"

"Neat!" The swarthy youth was Al Hart's shadow, and appropriated to himself his share of any credit that came to the director.

"It's a natural!" said Bernstein. "Where have they been all my life? Sa-ay, lookin' that little red-head on the 'Princess Pep'—boy, plenty. What's the doll's name?"

The youth consulted his list. He knew the name, but it was a pleasure to keep Benny waiting.

"Reynal, Sandra Reynal."

"Swell moniker. Seems like I've heard it before."

"Not this one, Benny. She's just off the boat. She owns her name, right, too, she told me. I asked her where she picked it up and she made some crack about the social register."

Ben Bernstein shot into the wings. He tore to his office and began barking orders to his secretary.

"Get out the social register. Mitty, find 'R.' Got it? Look for Reynal—R-e-y-n-a-l. Any of 'em in there? Read 'em up."

STRANGE FOLKS OF FAR PLACES.

V—Bushmen and Kaffirs.

There are people of "the bush" in Australia as well as in Africa; but the bushmen of Africa are more famed. They are short folk, the men and women being less than five feet tall on the average; and they are related to the pygmies, though not of just the same stock.

others dwell in caves or sleep beneath the open sky.

Mountain caves in South Africa contain pictures made by bushmen. These pictures are of little account as works of art (being not nearly as good as many pictures left by the cave people of Europe), but they are interesting. One of them shows bushmen driving away cattle which they have stolen from the Kaffirs. The owners of the cattle are in pursuit.

The bushmen artist shows the Kaffirs of large size, and the bushmen of small size.

The Kaffirs are indeed of goodly build—they rank among the very tall negroes of Africa. They have brown skins, broad noses, thick lips and woolly hair.

Men of the Kaffir tribes spend much of their time in the bush. They rub their skins with red clay and with fat, to guard themselves from the burning sun. Often they wear beads and feathers as ornaments.

Kaffir women are not allowed to care for livestock but have plenty of work to do in plowing the fields and caring for growing crops.

The huts of the Kaffir tribes are grouped together to form villages, and commonly are either of beehive or cone shape. Sometimes a hut is eight feet high at the center, and 25 feet wide. The walls are made of woven twigs, and the roofs are thatched.

LONDOS-SAUER TILT SUPPORTED BY 4 HEAVIES

Slagel, Chewaki, Davis and Vacturoff on Championship Card.

With the Jim Londos-Pete Sauer match set for next Wednesday night at the Ponce de Leon baseball park, Matchmaker Henry Weber got busy yesterday and completed the card.

Chief Chewaki, the well-known gourmand with an appetite for old socks, shoes and straw hats, will meet Karl Davis, the big boy, in the semi-windup.

In the preliminary match, Sol Slagel, the 220-pound contortionist, will wrestle Ivan Vacturoff, the big Russian.

Signing Jim Londos, the world's champion, for a match with Sauer, rated as one of Londos' chief foes, was a real feather in Matchmaker Weber's cap. In fact, he was feathered like an Indian chief.

The match already has the town by the ears and a demand for tickets began with the announcement yesterday.

The match came unexpectedly. Weber had been trying to get Gino Garibaldi to give Pete Sauer a return match after a foul victory here. But the Italian refused. This was a match the fans wanted.

Weber then called New York, seeking a match and learned that Londos, who has signed to meet Brown, had been unable to get the big fight to come to terms and was consequently open for dates. Londos agreed to meet Sauer after Weber posted a guarantee of $1,000.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters.

Commercial Houses Form Golf League

The Atlanta Commercial Athletic Association formed a golf league at a meeting held recently at Harbison-Short Sporting Goods Company, with Whittier Mills, Clark Thread Mills, Gulf Refining Company and Fisher Body Company entering this league.

This is the first time in the history of sports in Atlanta that a golf organization has been formed by commercial houses, and it is hoped that by the time of the next meeting, at least four more teams will have applied, so that an eight-club circuit can be formed. There are no fees attached to entering this league, as the playing of golf comes under the guidance of the Atlanta Commercial Athletic Association program of sports for commercial houses the year around. Bert Niehoff is president of this organization, and J. L. Asbell is secretary.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday night, and any commercial house that desires to enter this league and play regular weekly matches is requested to get in touch with Jimmy Harbison at Harbison-Short Sporting Goods Company, Main 9100.

Merion Handled Champs Like a Champ---Sarazen

Little, Shute Drop Out of Running in National Open as Goodman Wavers.

By Gene Sarazen,
Former United States and British Champion.
(Written for the United Press.)
Copyright, 1934, United Press.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, ARDMORE, Pa., June 7.—(UP)—Just as I predicted, Merion handled its champs like a champion itself.

It began with Lawson Little, the British amateur champion, then took on Denny Shute, the British open titleholder, and finally treated the defending champion, Johnny Goodman, very light. I am sure the Merion course was somewhat hurt as to what the boys said about it being a nice easy girl.

Tommy Armour was eliminated completely by taking an 82. There's no getting away from it that Merion, with its historical background, must not be taken too lightly. It's a great course. I've played many championship courses which are much longer but not half as tragic as Merion, and believe it or not, before this event is over four's will look awfully good on the card.

Today the boys had everything in their favor. The greens were perfect and easy to hold. The fairways were like oriental rugs and the wind was really in favor of the players. Personally, I expected when I saw the Stars and Stripes flowing towards the first green that the wind would help to produce some low scoring.

But as I told you, Merion is nothing to joke at.

Paul Runyan and I had a nice game. It was a contest to see which was the better niblick player. I thought I was an expert out of the sand, but when I came to the ninth I came to the conclusion I had to beat Paul on explosions if I was going to beat him, which I did by only a single stroke.

I certainly must congratulate Mac Smith for his excellent spirit. He has a bad ankle and was out in 40, but came back in 35 for a 75. That's what I call courage, and he has it.

The championship is still as open as it was Wednesday. Although a few of the titleholders are either out or as good as out, I thought Hagen made a great showing and I expect him to do better than his 76 today. I'm practically sure that he will now that the tension has worn off.

Wiffy Cox, Cruickshank and Lacey are by no means unknown players and so it was no surprise to me to see them play as well as they did, but I doubt if any one of them is capable of standing up to the finish.

The good golf that the spectators have been looking for is coming Friday or Saturday. The really big tension of the tournament is over. The first round is always the hardest. The final round is the most exciting, but by the time it is reached everybody cuts loose and shoots for anything in sight.

I still say that 200 won't be broken at Merion.

Wednesday night, and any commercial house that desires to enter this league and play regular weekly matches is requested to get in touch with Jimmy Harbison at Harbison-Short Sporting Goods Company, Main 9100.

SIX-YEAR-OLD MATE IS SECOND AT EPSON DOWNS

King Solomon Wins 29th Running of the Coronation Cup Race.

EPSON DOWNS, England, June 7.—(P)—Running his best race since arriving in England to prepare for the Ascot gold cup, A. C. Bastwick's Mate, veteran American campaigner, today finished second to King Solomon in the twenty-ninth running of the Coronation cup over the Derby course of one and one-half miles.

The six-year-old American horse, which as a three-year-old ranked with the best in his country, carried the top weight of 132 pounds and gave the winner three pounds. At the English, King Solomon, carrying the silks of Sir R. Brooke, was only three-quarters of a length in front of the Boston colt. Mate had a four-length advantage over E. T. Thornton-Smith's Chatelaine, winner of the Oaks last year and the only other starter.

Mate was the favorite at virtually even money, 21 to 20, while King Solomon, well-known English stake horse, started at 7 to 4. The American horse was well up with the pace from the start, but in the end found the heavy impost too much and just failed to get up.

An American horse, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Reigh Count, won the Coronation cup in 1929 and then went on to finish second in the Ascot fixture.

With the Greatest of Ease!

The ball flies through the air with the greatest of ease when Buster Chatham, Cracker shortstop, hits one. He didn't hit just one yesterday, he got five hits to help the Crackers smash the Lookouts in both games of a double header. This shot was taken as he hit one yesterday. He is rated as the best shortstop in the league and is now coming out of a batting slump with a real bang. Photo by George Cornett.

THREE PLAYERS TIED WITH 71'S AS SCORES SOAR

Wiffy Cox, Bob Cruickshank, Charley Lacey Lead First Round.

By Grantland Rice.

and Runyan—the two leading favorites, rated at 5 to 1 and 6 to 1.

Both niblicks were blazing hot before they finished the first round. They held their grip on gold and glory with the niblick and the putter, two of golf's most useful clubs. They played these two clubs as if they were musical instruments. At the first hole the confident, stocky Sarazen was bunkered twice—yet got his par by laying a sand shot stone dead. Runyan, from a guarding trap 20 yards away, laid his approach 10 feet from the cup.

They came booming along in front of thundering feet to the 185-yard ninth. Here Sarazen was bunkered and he was already 3 over par. On this occasion he didn't lay the ball dead against the pin, 50 feet away. He holed out from the trap with an explosive swirl that sent the ball spinning into the cup for a 2.

The usually accurate Runyan was bunkered at the 11th, 12th and 13th holes, where three disaster hung over his head. On each occasion the big gallery saw impending trouble. On each occasion Runyan got down in one putt to keep his scalp intact.

He struck me first. Runyan was shortening his back swing, which not only brought about loss of distance, but in addition loss of control. You rarely see Paul Runyan the dead-end of the niblicks, bunkered on four straight holes off the tee.

PUTTERS SAVE THE DAY.

It was the amazing recovery work of Sarazen and Runyan that kept them in the middle of the big scrap. They kept their niblicks on the outer edge of the bag and both had their putters working on every hole to duck the chasm that might have been their fate. Which is no bad sign for the three rounds to come.

Walter Hagen, another veteran with more than his share of crowns, moved along smoothly with his usual big following, until he pumped two drives out of bounds on the sixth. This blow-up cost him a 7 and also upset his pace.

Merion is this type of course. You can move along on smooth silk for several holes—and then suddenly someone tosses in a hand grenade and there is a 7 and an 8 on the card—and increased tension from that point on.

Jimmy Thomson, the mighty hitter from Long Beach, Cal., had a fine 74 in spite of a 7 to 10 hole. He and Willie Hunter and the two Dumas, with George Von Elm, kept the far west well in line.

Craig Wood, the Hollywood howitzer, was a typical case. Wood started home 3-4-3 and then finished with a par at the fourteenth tee. Then strokes began to filter away, to slip and slide from his grasp, and in place of a 70 he finished with a 75, despite the fact that he made but few mistakes.

It was one of the wildest of all wild days. Raider Jewett had five consecutive 3's and then finished with an 80. On the 420-yard sixteenth hole across a deep abyss, Mel Shore hammered his tee shot into a trap—took out a spoon and then holed the next shot for a 2, 210 yards away.

Rodney Bliss goes out in 41 and comes back in 33. Mac Smith takes a 7 on the 590-yard fourth, gets to the edge of the 400-yard fifth in 2 and then takes a 4 to get down from the green's edge. Then Mac, in place of blowing wide open, suddenly takes the course apart.

It was the sort of day—a hot sun—a keen wind—and pulses popping all over the course. As the last returns came in it was still anybody's tournament among at least 30 survivors. Among those I favor you can include Gene Sarazen, Paul Runyan, Horton Smith, Mac Smith, Craig Wood, Walter Hagen and the three leaders—Cox, Cruickshank and Lacey. The drama has only started.

Shave 3 Days with this "Barber-type" Razor

—and watch how quickly Sore Spots, Neck Pimples and Ingrown Hairs will disappear

Instead of scraping whiskers off against the face... the Durham Duplex cuts through the beard, cleanly, smoothly

DOES shaving make your neck
"break out"? It may be from razor irritation.

Ordinary razors that use "wedge-type" blades frequently lead to this condition. They hack whiskers off by pressure of the blade against the face.

No wonder your neck "breaks out"
... becomes tender, inflamed!

Durham uses "Hollow-Ground"
Blade—like your Barber's Razor

You've noticed how cleanly your barber's razor shaves... never pulling or scraping the skin.

You get the very same shave with a Durham because it, too, has a "hollow-ground" blade that rests flat on the face

NO CHOPPING HERB! Your Durham Duplex with its barber-type "hollow-ground" blade rests flat against the face. Whiskers are cut off at the surface of the skin... evenly, closely, painlessly—and with 50 per cent fewer strokes!

your shave takes less time... that it's cleaner and lasts longer!

In a few days your skin will become smoother... sore spots will gradually disappear! If not satisfied after a fair trial, just return the razor to us—we'll gladly refund the purchase price.

FREYER FIGHTS SEAGERS TONIGHT

Harvey Seagers has been signed to meet Elmo Freyer in the main match of the Lakewood amateur fight card tonight. Matches will be staged in the walkabout building in case of inclement weather. Ladies will be admitted free of charge, and ample seating arrangements will be made to care for a large crowd.

Seagers captured the welterweight championship in the eleventh round last year and will be a worthy opponent for Freyer, who is a former
A. A. U. champion and member of the United States Olympic squad.

The program will include a full card of amateur fights and will begin at 8:15 o'clock. Other entries on the card include Jimmy Patten, New Holland, 6-1; Paul Howard, Phil Slaughter and others. All are top-notch fighters in their class and prizes will be awarded as has been the custom on the past cards.

All fighters are urged to report at the park at 6 o'clock so that there will be no delay in the program.

Prizes will be given the winners of each boxing bout. Matches are sanctioned by the A. A. U. The park area seats several thousand and there are many acres of free parking space.
The amateur fights have produced many good fighters and most of them appear tonight.

JUNIOR KIRVEN SHOOTS AN ACE

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 7.—(AP)— J. Dupont Kirven Jr., 17-year-old defending champion, shot a hole-in-one and turned in a 72 today to win medal honors in the qualifying round of the annual invitation golf tournament of the Columbus Country Club.

The youthful golfing star shot his hole-in-one on the No. 16 par 3 hole, which is a distance of 135 yards. His score for the 18 holes was one over par. Young Kirven defeated his father, J. D. Kirven, in the final match of last year's tournament.

The youth was graduated from Columbus High school last week.

Match play in the tournament begins tomorrow morning.

It was really Prince Oana who put the Crackers back into the first game.
The Lookouts were winning, 5 to 1, when Oana came up with two on.

The Prince has been unfortunate enough to come up on the spot several times since he slipped into his hitting slump.

His reply to this one was a triple to deep center that scored two men and left the score 5 to 3. From there the Crackers went on to win.

The Crackers will be in there at the finish. Despite the present dominance of Bill Terry's Colts at Nashville the Crackers are still a real pennant contender.

Ivan Allen Scores
Ace at Capital City

Ivan Allen Jr. scored a hole-in-one on the sixth hole at the Capital City Club Thursday. He was playing with Charlie Marshall, Jim Callaway and H. T. Dobbs.

The sixth hole measures 140 yards from the tee and Allen's tee shot hit a few inches in front of the cup and rolled in for the ace.

Abbott Okays Crackers Again; Seeks Taylor

By Ralph McGill.

"Back in the race?" said Spencer Abbott, as his club came clattering in yesterday from winning two from the Lookouts. "We've never been out of it."

He was speaking in a nice gentle voice that sounded like the storm on a rockbound coast.

"We lost eight games on the road, but we were never licked. I mean by that we were in every game and had a chance to win all of them. It's when you get badly beaten that you must worry. No one did that to us. All the games were close."

The Crackers were coming in happy and skylarking a bit. This is a congenial club of good fellows. In fact, after peering at ball clubs for more than a dozen years, I nominate this one as the most congenial, hustling outfit seen across that span of years.

It develops that Ed Taylor, third baseman purchased from Kansas City, is still absent and that Abbott has wired Kansas City asking how come.
An answer is expected today revealing the whereabouts of the wandering infielder.

Fritz Knothe, who wasn't quitting baseball after all, but who didn't want to play in the south, was swapped for Taylor.

Abbott isn't worried about Prince Henry Oana's hitting. I know because I asked him. "Listen," he said,
"the boy knocked in 186 runs one year ago and 166 another in his two years on the coast. He can hit. He changed his stance today so that he was stepping into the ball. He got one triple. I have seen him hit a 100 balls that hard. He hit them all hard today. He'll start. So don't worry."

Abbott had a verbal put on the back for the entire club. He singled out Buster Chatham, the hustling shortstop, and Byrne James, second baseman, to compliment for their play in the double-header. Chatham got five hits in the two games, while James helped win the first one with three timely blows.

The Crackers punished Joe Engel and Zinn Beck's Lookouts in a harsh manner. They came from behind to win the first one and then grabbed the second one and ran away with it.

There should be no complaint from either fans or ball players about the lighting system tonight at Ponce de Leon park.

Officials of the Crackers have had the entire lighting arrangement overhauled, the lights themselves better focused and new bulbs installed. The result is that the visibility has been greatly improved.

"We had an expert from the Western Electric Company come down and superintend it," President Wilbert Robinson stated.

The first night game that the Crackers played with Little Rock drew a round of complaints from players and fans. But they should be all right from now on for the club's weekly appearance under the arcs.

Tonight's game, by the way, will start at 8:30 o'clock instead of 8, so as to give the teams more time for batting practice. Ladies are urged to come early and purchase their tax tickets to avoid the rush. Tonight is ladies' night and while they are admitted free, they must have tax tickets.

Frank Barnes will pitch for Atlanta and Ed Linke, ex-Senator speedballer, will work for the Lookouts.

SANDLOT GAME.

Oakland City Cardinal baseball sand lot team, sponsored by the American Legion, wishes to schedule practice games within the next two weeks.
Games in the forenoon are mostly desired. Any team wanting games with a good club, get in touch with Ben Burton at 1341 Lee street, S. W.

Georgia Fields And Streams
By H. A. Carter.

Passing up the scale of turtle adaptations a notch and leaving the loggerhead to his home in the green tropical oceans, we come to a class of turtles that have been altogether too little studied. These are the snappers, known technically as the family

A local name for the species is log-head. I know an industrious young herpetologist at the University of Michigan who once caught 20 of these horrible-jawed turtles by wading bare-stayed in muddy water and finding out with his feet. He wanted them to be able to live. If I had one that would not have a toe that I can wiggle.

The jaws of this turtle are remarkably strong and can crush as well as chew. You leave no doubt in the victor's mind when he bites down, for he can bite a stick and retain the knowledge of the grip on it even after the stick is severed from the body. The head of the odd is the ugliest of the turtle tribe. To the uninitiated it shows you a picture of an animal species that will give you an idea of the utter lack of beauty of the snapping turtle.

Georgia specimens reach 50 pounds in weight. I am convinced that the largest one has never been caught, as the case of so many of our native species of fish. The back is smooth,

Louisiana Beats Bill To Punish Papers

BATON ROUGE, La., June 7.—(P)—By a margin of one and one-third votes, a minority in the lower house of the Louisiana state legislature today defeated an attempt to notify press representatives that privileges in the house would be withdrawn if certain "biased and editorial" news reporting did not cease. The threat to banish press representatives from the chamber was contained in a resolution introduced by Representative William Pegues, of Desoto parish. Condemning the asserted practice of certain Louisiana newspapers in subjecting to criticism the authors of bills and resolutions presenting controversial issues, the resolution announced that the press was "warned to refrain from such practice in the future" on pain of withdrawal of facilities and courtesies provided by the house. Representative Pegues moved to suspend the rules for immediate consideration of his resolution, but his motion was defeated with 36 yeas and 90 nays. A two-thirds favorable vote was required. The resolution was placed on the calendar to await routine consideration. 'JOB RACKET' WARNING IS ISSUED BY POLICE Police learned of a new racket in Atlanta Thursday when a large business concern reported that an unknown man had collected various sums of money from several persons by posing as an employment agent. According to reports, the impostor claimed to employ his victims and required a cash deposit which he said would be used as a bond. Those who posted the "bond" learned later that the company with which they believed they were securing work had no job open. Officers advised all persons to investigate carefully any offer of a position requiring them to post bond.

Mrs. Miller is to seek a divorce from the former mayor, the announcement said, and to resign as legal guardian for her husband after making a final accounting to the West Chester county, New York, court in which she was appointed last fall. The Millers are to make an equal division of property. Mrs. Rickey Hurt. COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 7.—(P)—Mrs. J.
